WASHINGTON (AP) — The antiwar protester and for labor will annoy others... it would Supreme Court today cut into the power of police to clear the streets of "annoying" groups of people.

In a 5 to 3 decision invalidating a Cincinnati ordinance, the court held loitering laws must be specific to be constitutional.

The Cincinnati ordinance disapproved by a five-man majority headed by Justice Potter Stewart had made it a crime for three or more people to assemble on city sidewalks "and there conduct themselves in a manner annoying to persons passing by."

Stewart said the ordinance was invalid for two reasons.

First, he said, it is vague in that "no standard of conduct is specified at all." That is, he said, each individual officer, judge and juror is free to express his own sensitivities in deciding whether a particular group was "criminally annoying."

Free Assembly

Second, Stewart said, the ordinance violates the constitutional right of free assembly and association. "Our decisions establish that mere public intolerance and animosity cannot be the basis for abridgment of these constitutional freedoms," he said.

The justice added: "The First and 14th Amendments do not permit a state to make criminal the exercise of the right of assembly simply because its exercise may be 'annoying' to some people. If this were not the rule, the right of the people to gather in public places for social or political purposes would be continually subject to summary suspension through the good-faith enforcement of a prohibition against annoying conduct."

Unusual Majority

The ruling was produced by an unusual majority. Three liberals, William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall, were joined by two conservatives, John M. Harlan and Stewart. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Harry A. Blackmun joined in a dissenting opinion by Justice Byron R. White, a former deputy U.S. attorney general. Justice Hugo L. Black filed a separate opinion.

The decision has national implications in that it puts shaky ground under loitering ordinances that are written in general terms. The Cincinnati case was brought to the court by an

Police Rescue Young Girl Hostage in Istanbul

ISTANBUL (AP) — Police freed the girl in a three-minute gun battle and wounded the two youths, one fatally and the other critically.

The girl was rescued uninjured but hospital officials reported she was being treated for shock. The girl, Sibel Erkan, was at first reported by the hospital to have been wounded.

The two youths, Huseyin Cevahir and Mahir Cayan, were wanted for the kidnap-murder of Israeli Consul General Ephraim Elrom.

Audie Murphy, the nation's most decorated World War II hero and a movie actor, was killed in the crash of this plane on a mountaintop near Roanoke, Va., along with five other men during a storm. The wreckage was found Monday.

Hero Audie Murphy Dies in Crash

By BILL BASKERVILL
Associated Press Writer

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — The

wreckage of a chartered airplane carrying World War II hero Audie Murphy and five other men has been found on a rugged mountaintop near here.

Pathologists worked today trying to positively identify the bodies removed from the wreckage Monday by rescue workers and taken to Roanoke Community Hospital.

Spokesmen at the state medical examiner's office here said

it probably would be late afternoon—possibly Wednesday—before positive identifications could be established.

The rescue workers said three bodies might be identified by physical features, but the other three were burned so badly they were unrecognizable.

"All indications point to the fact that it is Audie," said Lincoln Carle, the 46-year-old Murphy's business manager. "We don't have positive identification but everything else matches."

As the nation's most decorated World War II hero, Murphy received 24 medals from the American government, three from the French and one from the Belgians.

Medal of Honor

He won the Medal of Honor after he mounted a burning American tank and, although wounded, held off with a 50-caliber machine gun German troops which were advancing on him from three sides.

Besides the Medal of Honor he won the Distinguished Service

Cross, the Legion of Merit, the Silver Star with Oak Leaf cluster, the Bronze Star and the Croix de Guerre. He also received the Purple Heart with two Oak Leaf clusters.

Murphy, who rose to lieutenant, also was commended for having killed 240 German soldiers.

Murphy had been flying to Martinsville 60 miles south of here on business. The plane went down Friday morning but the crash went undetected three days because of bad weather and because no flight plan had been filed.

Boarded in Atlanta

Numbers still visible on the tail of the twin-engine Aero Commander matched those on the aircraft in which Murphy and five others had boarded in Atlanta. The wreckage was spotted Monday on the north side of 3,056-foot Brushy Mountain about 14 miles northwest of here. It was reached later in the day by rescue workers, who had to hike four miles up the steep mountain terrain.

The five persons who boarded the plane with Murphy were Claude Crosby, president of Modular Management, a subsidiary of Modular Properties Inc. of Atlanta; Jack Littleton of Fort Collins, Colo., secretary-treasurer of Lenoir Corp.; Raymond Prater, a Chattanooga, Tenn., lawyer representing Modular Management; Kim Dody of Ft. Collins, Colo., a friend of Littleton; and the pilot, Herman Butler of Denver, Colo.

Murphy turned to business several years ago after a 44-month career that included "To Hell and Back," a film based on his autobiography, and "The Red Badge of Courage."

He recently produced his first movie, "A Time for Dying," to be released later this month in which he played a cameo role and, said Carle, "gave one of his finest performances, as a short as it was." Murphy's son Terry also had a brief part in the film.

Another Movie

Carle said plans were in the works for another picture in Mexico.

The plane, a propjet, last was heard from Friday morning when Butler radioed the flight service station at Roanoke's sharing plan to the floor over to advise he planned to land there in 40 minutes.

Unwilling to risk a vote at that time, the leadership pulled up for debate today when members are still struggling back time made a landing approach applying pressure ever since in through the mountainous region an effort to turn back the GOP challenge.

Because the Murphy party had filed no flight plan, the Federal Aviation Administration would have no reports had been received the plane was missing until Sunday afternoon.

Crowd Cheered

The large crowd cheered as the news of the girl's rescue spread.

The two youths had dropped a bag containing Elrom's passport and identity card Sunday when they moved from the deserted mansion to the apartment.

Elrom was kidnaped May 17 by the Turkish People's Liberation Army and murdered five days later when the government refused to release all political hostages it was holding.

Cost of F14 Up $1 Million

Navy May Reduce Plane Purchases

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top defense official has taken a step that could lead to a cutback in the Navy's purchase of a new fighter plane whose price reportedly has risen by about $1 million apiece.

The Pentagon said Deputy Secretary of Defense David Packard has asked Secretary of the Navy John Chafee "to re-examine the development and production plans for the F14 aircraft."

Chafee expects to complete this re-examination in the next few weeks and, at that time, Packard "will determine what changes, if any, are appropriate in the F14 program," the Defense Department said.

In effect, the Pentagon leadership appears ready to take the F14 matter out of the hands of the Navy, which has been dealing with the cost-overrun problem disclosed nearly two months ago.

Although Grumman Aerospace Corp., Bethpage, L.I., was chosen by the Johnson administration to build the plane, the situation has an embarrassing potential for the Nixon administration because the development contract was signed after President Nixon took office in 1969.

Sources said Packard discussed the F14 problem last week with a high-level Pentagon committee including such senior officials as Dr. John Foster, director of defense research and engineering, and Barry Shillito, assistant secretary for installations and logistics.

Indicating the possible direction of Packard's thinking, one source said, "If you have a cost problem, the only way to handle it is to cut back."

The Navy presently plans to buy 710 of the swing-wing fighters designed to fly from carrier decks starting in 1973.

Late last year, Chafee told newsmen each F14 "Tomcat" would cost about $11.5 million. But in early April Pentagon sources said the price had risen about $1 million higher per plane, which could boost the over-all cost of the program to about $9 billion.

On April 7, Grumman said it expects to produce the first 38 planes, already under contract, for the original price set in December 1968. But the company said building additional aircraft at that price "would not be in the best interest of all parties to the contract."

Grumman cited "the impact of abnormal inflation and a decrease in defense business" as key factors.

Another source said the price increase was due to a combination of factors, including a rise in the cost of raw materials and a shortage of skilled labor.

The Navy's current plan calls for purchasing 710 F14s over the next five years. The Navy's current plan calls for purchasing 710 F14s over the next five years.

Miller's wife, Lydia, 60, was hospitalized in serious condition at Wausau.

Marathon County authorities said the collision occurred in the eastbound lane and that the drivers apparently were Zanders and Oestreich.

Paul Schroeder, 30, Milwaukee, was killed Monday in a head-on crash on Wisconsin 36, about two miles north of Watertown in Racine County. His wife and three children and the driver of the other car were hospitalized.

One of the two youngsters who survived told authorities he had urged the driver to slow down just before the auto careened into the water near the town of Silver Lake.

A fiery crash in California involving three cars on the Santa Monica Freeway Sunday killed three persons and injured six others.

Officials said one auto plowed over the median strip and collided with a second car, then a third auto smashed into the wreckage.

Ann Doty, 23, of Logandale, Nev., was one of four persons killed in a crash Saturday in Nevada near the state's border with Utah. Miss Doty was returning home after being graduated Friday from Brigham Young University where she was editor of the campus literary magazine.

Major Fight Looms On Manpower Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders are going to win the first head-to-head battle between the administration and Congress over one of President Nixon's revenue-sharing plans.

They are billing Wednesday's vote on a manpower bill as one of the year's most important in an effort to rally Democrats behind a public-service-employment bill being offered as an alternative to Nixon's plan.

The showdown is a result of a surprise victory two weeks ago by Republicans and Southern Democrats who forced Nixon's power of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission revenue-sharing plan to the floor over to deal with job discrimination.

The willingness of Speaker Carl Albert to bring the jobs bill that time, the leadership pulled up for debate today when members are still struggling back time made a landing approach applying pressure ever since in through the mountainous region an effort to turn back the GOP challenge.

Because the Murphy party had filed no flight plan, the Federal Aviation Administration would have no reports had been received the plane was missing until Sunday afternoon.

Rainy, overcast weather made a search impossible until the skies cleared Monday.

City's Hospitals to Expand Services

Expanded medical care, including surgical facilities for open heart surgery, will be provided in Appleton by early fall, the boards of Appleton Memorial and St. Elizabeth hospitals have announced.

A joint study conducted by the boards has concluded that to improve further the level of medical care to the community, two steps will be taken — provision of improved emergency procedures, including having a qualified physician always at emergency facilities, and of equipment and facilities for open heart and thoracic surgery.

The two hospitals also announced that through the agency of the Council of Hospital Boards, they will continue to work together toward the improvement of health services in the community and the elimination of duplication of costly facilities and services where it appears warranted.

In detail, the two provisions approved were:

While both hospitals presently provide adequate facilities, the staffing of these facilities does not include a qualified physician except on a call basis. Where a patient is admitted under emergency conditions with a physician in attendance, present procedures are satisfactory and will be continued. To provide the best possible care for those patients seeking assistance who do not have a physician in attendance, there should be an emergency facility in the community which is staffed by a qualified physician.

St. Elizabeth Hospital has agreed to develop such a facility. The ultimate objective is to have a physician in attendance at all times with full responsibility for the supervision of the emergency facility. The development of this program has been given top priority.

Appleton Memorial Hospital will provide the needed facilities and equipment and will through its medical staff undertake the assembling and training of a surgical team capable of handling open heart surgery and other major surgery requiring mechanical bypassing of the heart.

This facility, in the opinion of Chief of Medical Staff of the two hospitals, has the highest priority of any present addition to community medical capabilities

Bubolz Says Talks May be Revived on Merger of Planners

WAUTOMA — Talks on merging Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission and the Fox Valley Council of Governments may be revived in the near future, Gordon Bubolz, Northeastern chairman said today.

Bubolz told commissioners at Northeastern's quarterly meeting that he had been in contact with Kaukauna Mayor Gilbert Anderson, COG chairman, about renewed talks.

He also said that Oshkosh persons, including one alderman, and a business group from Neenah-Menasha apparently were interested in merger possibilities. Bubolz said he hoped the executive committees of the two planning agencies could get together soon.

Bubolz said this apparent interest led him to think that chances would be improved for a merger. COG voted against a merger earlier this year. Anderson said today he would be glad to meet with Bubolz. The Outagamie finance and planning committees are recom-any new proposals.

More Planning

Charles Hill Sr., secretary of the state Department of Local Affairs and Development, said there is a new thrust at the federal and state level toward greater regional planning funding and program. He also said he expected his department would be giving more attention to planning since its nonplanning responsibilities were being reduced.

Bubolz revealed the renewed merger effort in his opening remarks. He said he hoped to meet with Anderson soon to set up the renewed discussions.

He noted that the mayors of New London and Appleton had given strong endorsement to the continued existence of Northeastern as well as Winnebago County and said that he hoped Outagamie would do the same.

The Outagamie finance and planning committees are recom-

Urban Division

Bubolz said that the commission is open on the details of what the merger should be but added that there definitely should be provision of an urban planning division for the municipalities and urban counties.

The commission chairman noted the "victories" in Winnebago and Outagamie Counties and said the future for Northeastern looked good. He called for burying the ax in the planning agency controversy.

Northeastern and COG have been struggling to get the upper hand in an anticipated redelineation of planning boundaries. The battle has become bitter in recent weeks.

Charles Hervey, Northeastern executive director, also noted that Northeastern had beaten attempts to eliminate it and Turn to Page 4, Col. 8

Indians Defy Court Order To Protest at Legend Lake

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

KESHENA — Scuffling broke out between protesters and law enforcement officers Sunday as a Menominee Indian group and its supporters renewed demonstrations at the Legend Lake development site.

Deliberately defying a court order banning demonstrations on property of the land sales by an Indian rock band, the demonstrators marched the half mile to the land office and then formed a circle in the parking lot, which had been declared off-limits by the court order.

No arrests were made at the scene, though Menominee County Sheriff Wilmer Peters warned the demonstrators that they were in contempt of court as they entered the sales office parking lot, and later sprayed a crowd-control liquid into a struggle that broke out in front of one of the office doors.

Shawano County sheriff's deputies and Shawano police officers responded to a call from Peters for help.

The demonstration resumed on a violent note the protests begun last spring by a group called DRUMS (Determination of Rights and Unity for Menominee Shareholders), which opposes sale of former reservation land to non-Indians.

Joined by Sympathizers

Sunday's activities included participants from upper Wisconsin, Milwaukee and Chicago, DRUMS chapters as well as such sympathizers as members of the Chicago Indian Village, described by a spokesman as "the most militant Indian group in the nation." and LaCausa — Chicago Federation, a Chicago group.

On April 30, Circuit Judge James A. Martineau of Oconto signed a preliminary injunction prohibiting DRUMS and seven specifically named supporters or members from demonstrating on the Legend Lakes property without permission of the developers, Lakes of the Menominees.

The partnership consists of N.E. Isaacson & Associates, Inc., of Reedsburg, and Menominee Enterprises, Inc., the corporation that manages tribal timber and land holdings in the former reservation, now Menominee County.

The group defied the injunction, according to one spokesman out of frustration at the court system and the refusal of several courts to uphold the organization's side of the dispute.

Injunction Upheld

Both the Wisconsin Supreme Court and the U.S. District Court in Milwaukee last week refused to overturn Martineau's temporary injunction, which was handed down to prevent demonstrations until a law suit by Lakes of the Menominees against the protesters is settled. The suit stems from previous demonstrations.

Lakes of the Menominees, on the other hand, is currently under court orders to refrain from selling land near a proposed third dam in the artificially enlarged lake chain, until the court rules on a DRUMS-backed challenge of the Department of Natural Resources permit allowing construction of the long holiday weekend. The usual fine challenges of you want, it is there. "The hard sell of the mass media is the way of the herd in our time." If you follow this vision, the thing that drives you on is the replacing of the old models with the new.

And there's the third way of life, Walter said, describing the life of a horticulturist, Luther Burbank, "who left this earth covered with flowers and fruit, that had never grown before."

Here was a man who cared about and believed in who he was and what he did; who got hold of a role that wrung him out, took all he had to give to life from day to day.

Here was a man who came to understand that his finest moments were destined to be, not those when he took care of number one, but rather when he enriched and glorified life with his efforts, Walter said.

"This man was a man who at the last moment of his life was a more fully functioning person than at any other time.

Man Who Cared

He was a man to be numbered among those who care; those who live in commitment to the finest they can lay their hearts and minds on; those who give: who burn themselves in abundant and constructive use.

"And he was among those who serve ideas and principles and institutions and human beings outside themselves and the central driving force in the more important than themselves." Walter concluded.

Then, as a parting gesture, he wished the class of 1971 "not everyone has color television wealth, nor positions, nor peace and the women stop squeezing of mind, but a long and hard and fulfilling, hard working and richly growing life."

2 Trades Unions On Strike Today

Members of two of five northeastern Wisconsin construction trades unions whose contracts expired today are on strike. Involved are some 1,200 carpenters from a large part of the northeastern Wisconsin and some 200 members of the painters union which claims membership from Appleton to Oshkosh.

Laborers and teamsters locals have set meetings for Thursday and bricklayers, who met Monday, have requested mediation through the National Labor Relations Board.

Although laborers, teamsters and bricklayers are without contracts, they remained on the job under their old contracts, in the Fox Valley today.

Officials of the Fox River Valley Contractors Association were not available for comment today on how the carpenters and painters strike would effect area construction or what steps are planned by management to attempt to settle the contract dispute.

An official of one large Appleton-based general contracting firm said the carpenter walkout, if it continues, would have a serious economic effect on the construction industry in the Fox Valley. He said progress will be hampered at three major jobs being done by his firm.

Neenah-based contractor who employs about 15 carpenters said the problem involves more than just a work stoppage by carpenters. "If they're not on the job, it affects a number of others, too," he explained, even if the carpenters do not picket. A spokesman for a major Appleton contractor said, "He'll just have to continue working until it's time for the carpenters to start." He said it was too soon to determine the full impact of the strike.

Officials of the five trades unions, when contacted today, would reveal only sketchy information concerning the current work status and meeting plans for members of the local.

Voted to Strike

Jerry Jahnke, business representative for the Fox River Valley District Council of Carpenters, said that 90 per cent of the union members at a Saturday meeting voted to strike today.

Jahnke said that carpenters are not picketing job sites and will not do so unless "someone else is doing our work."

William Smith of Oshkosh, business representative of the painters Local 145, said members of his union were meeting in Oshkosh today. Smith said the only action expected to be taken today was on an as-yet-unopened letter from a painting contractors. Smith said he did not know the contents of the letter.

Painters, who reportedly had agreed they would not work if they did not have a contract, are not picketing. Smith explained.

Although officials of the brick-

Appleton's Cystic Fibrosis Poster Girl Dies Sunday

Eight-year-old Peggy Krueger died Sunday in Milwaukee of cystic fibrosis.

Four years ago Peggy was Appleton's cystic fibrosis poster girl.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Krueger, 204 1/2 N. State St. He is the president of the Wisconsin chapter of the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation.

Until six weeks ago Peggy attended second grade at Highland School. She was a quiet student but popular with her classmates. "When they had art to do or something like that the kids always wanted to be in her group because she was a very good artist," said Mrs. Robert Kolosso, her teacher.

Her drawings of horses and cats were familiar to the children. "She loved animals, especially horses and cats," said Mrs. Kolosso.

Peggy also loved mathematics classes. When she went to the hospital she took mathematics and art books along.

She sent pictures back with Mrs. Kolosso who visited her in Milwaukee.

"She was making paper flowers, and she was doing some felt pictures." A week ago Saturday she sent a picture of a clown to Mrs. Kolosso.

Because of her illness Peggy could not join in rough-and-tumble games, but it seldom bothered her, according to Mrs. Kolosso. "The boys and girls in the room never really knew what was wrong with her."

Dr. W. T. Bruns cared for Peggy. She usually was happy, he said. "Peggy was an extremely outgoing and cheerful girl."

She loved horses and with Dr. Bruns consent was taken on four-hour leaves from the hospital to go riding. "We tried everything we could to keep her happy."

But Peggy died Sunday. Her survivors are her parents and maternal and paternal grand-

Menasha May Hire Relief Recipients For Part-Time Jobs

MENASHA — City Atty. relief responsibilities were, and Richard Steffens has suggested especially if the city is liable for the city check the feasibility of relief payments to persons moving out of the city. hiring local relief recipients to work part-time to pay for their relief checks.

Steffens wrote that the city is liable for such payments. The money that would be necessary to check on the validity of each claim that comes from persons in other communities would be too great to justify.

But Steffens did suggest the committee see if the city could hire recipients to work on public works jobs for the time it takes decision on whether or not to pay (at the prevailing wage) recommending contributing more for the relief check they're money to the Neenah-Menasha Relief Group, which is strapped.

Steffens said today, when contacted, he said the city did it then for everything from cleaning the parks to sweeping the streets.

Steffens didn't say he was advocating the change. "I'm just advocating we look into it," he said. Two drawbacks would be that the city must pay the prevailing wage for the particular job, and that the hiring of recipients could not put any regular employees out of work.

He also said that he wasn't sure whether or not the city would have to pay retirement benefits and insurance costs for such employees, but if it did, this could be another drawback.

Steffens said the employees could work just as long as it takes to pay for the relief payments they are receiving from the N-M Relief Group. In other words, if John Jones gets $30 a week from the group, he would work for the city at the prevailing wage scale until that $30 is paid for.

Savings Possible for NM Plant Design Still Confused

NEENAH-MENASHA — No matter what happens eventually to solve Twin City water pollution, the introduction of the industry-sponsored Weston study will muddy political decision-making for some time.

Weston engineers' interim report released last Friday says a pilot-scale evaluation of a new treatment process — sludge re-aeration modification of the activated sludge process — will work.

From what they deduce a total cost of $13.1 million to bring treatment up to present standards and keep it there until 1990, as the Department of Natural Resources requires.

Weston and local industry claim $6.6 million savings and shortened construction time over the sewerage commission's plans.

$20 Million

The commission and its engineers, Consoer & Townsend, are now designing a plant which uses primary settling tanks, the activated sludge process and they project costs between $17 and $20 million dollars. There have been no recent estimates

40 MGD

The commission has taken the same view as the DNR, though not voted on it. C&T estimates more than $3 million will be needed to go from a 30 MGD plant to a 40 MGD plant, which is what the DNR strongly implies would be the smallest acceptable size to them.

Weston has no alternate figures on what a 40 MGD plant using its processes would cost, but whatever the cost, it would put a large dent into the $6.6 million projected savings.

Most of the savings come because Weston would not build more tanks, and would not buy more land. However, if the state

UWGB Chancellor's Award Presented to Neenah Woman

GREEN BAY — Mrs. James Buchanan of Neenah was one of three northeastern Wisconsin residents to receive the Chancellor's Award during commencement ceremonies Sunday at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.

Others receiving the award were Robert C. Hood, Marinette, president of the Anslu Company, and John P. Nash, Manitowish lawyer. Sigurd F. Olson, of Ely, Minn., author and wilderness conservationist, was presented with the Faculty Award.

Mrs. Buchanan, a leader in local, state and national education groups, was cited for her "abiding concern for education and talent for leadership."

She is a trustee of her alma mater, Lawrence University, a member of the national education board of the United Presbyterian Church, and a member of the Neenah School Board, which she has served as president since 1970.

Buchanan has been chairman of the Task Unit on Curriculum and now is a district chairman responsible for informing the public about commission recommendations.

She also has served as chairman of the UWGB education advisory committee of the School of Professional Studies since 1968.

Kaukauna Cited For Pedestrian Safety Record

Kaukauna was one of six Wisconsin cities recognized for pedestrian safety Monday by the American Automobile Association.

The city last recorded a pedestrian fatality in November, 1963, and last year had only two pedestrian injuries.

Other cities cited are Madison, which ranked first in the nation among cities of from 50,000 to 100,000 population; Greendale; Marshfield; Fox Point; and Shawano.

Eligibility for the recognition is determined on an evaluation of pedestrian traffic accidents, including deaths and injuries, and a comparison and rating with other cities in the same size categories.

There were 34 cities in the list of those that earned special safety honors.

The cities' records were judged in Washington, D.C.

YES Is Answer for Young Workers

YES is the answer if you're a high school student looking for part-time work this summer.

YES (Youth Employment Service), a new program offered by the Appleton YMCA, went into effect today.

People aged 14 through high school graduates may begin applying now for a myriad of activities from general office work to soda fountain operation to detasseling corn.

They'll let Tom Carpenter, 24, an Appleton native and YMCA employee, know of their desire to work and he'll transfer them off to persons who have notified him of their need for help.

Here's how it works:

Interested young people will come to see Carpenter at his office overlooking the Y's pool and fill out a card listing their availability and particular job skills.

Then, when Carpenter gets a call at 739-6135, extension 44, from a citizen who needs help with some work, he'll line up about three qualified persons and send them to the home where they will "interview" the position with the prospective employer.

The prospective employer will have told Carpenter what work it is he needs done, when, where and how much he is willing to pay for the services the young people will provide. The wages are set by the employer.

On Their Own

After that, the employer and the student are on their own for that particular job. When it's completed, the student's services will be available for other work.

It's that simple.

Primarily all work would be short-term or part-time. Many students will be available for the various odd jobs that crop up in the summer months.

"It's a means by which jobs and young people can be brought together," Carpenter said. "It's a project of concern and hope."

"We're giving these kids a chance to achieve some dignity and to assume the responsibility to do something right," Robert Brunken, general secretary of the Y, added. It was Brunken who began battling the idea from a citizen who needs help around for a form of summer employment for Appleton's young people early this spring. And today it formally took shape.

Both young people and Appleton residents interested in the program may call the youth employment counselor's office between 3 and 6 p.m. daily and from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday.

The program is not financed by the YMCA. Citizen contributions will help to keep it going. Carpenter will help to keep it going. Carpenter will help to keep it going.

Menasha Alderman Attacks Northeastern

MENASHA — Third Ward Ald. Sumner Parker will seek council support for a resolution tonight asking the Winnebago County board to reconsider its recent decision designating the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission as county planning agency.

Mayor James Adams is opposed to Parker's move.

Parker will have a better forum than Adams at the council meeting beginning at 7:30 p.m. today, however. Parker, as the county board action, feels any action now is a waste of time.

Adams attends a public hearing in the Town of Neenah on creation of a sanitary district there.

County Board

The county board, on May 18, voted 29-15 to stay with Northeastern. The decision upset some supervisors from urban areas, who felt the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) would be better equipped to handle the problems of urban areas than the nine-county rural-oriented NWRPC.

The Neenah council, on May 19, said the same thing in a vote opposing the board's move.

Parker said he was proposing reaching a compromise on Fox Valley regional planning. The resolution is one of several significant matters Adams, while not in favor of before the council tonight. Others are:

Sewer Meters

—A resolution to approve $1,250 in short term borrowing to pay for a sewer metering study by Consoer & Townsend Associates, sewage plant consultants.

New Agency

He said a new regional planning agency, different from both COG and NWRPC, should be formed first, and "then, we can withdraw from both of them."

He noted that the executive director of COG has recently announced his resignation. He said the Menasha Redevelopment Authority (MRA), although chairman, should follow through on an earlier statement and also that he was seeking appointments (there are two openings) the two warring groups in for the authority.

Objections Are Raised To Mobile Home Park

A public hearing on a proposed million dollar, 260-unit mobile home park in the Town of Grand Chute will be continued at 9:30 a.m. June 10 in the courthouse annex.

Representatives of the developers and landowners, said the representatives had thought the hearing was to have been conducted at 7 p.m. today. The hearing began at 10 a.m.

Many of the 50 area residents at the hearing, however, expressed their opposition to the park which, according to plans, would be located on 61.5 acres of land just outside the west Appleton city limits between Wisconsin Avenue and Outagamie County Trunk OO. Mrs. Jerome Block, 1917 N. Birchwood Ave., called the park "an island of poverty and problems in an area of affluence."

Others at the hearing said they would like proof that such an addition to the area is needed. They pointed out that numerous apartments in the same area are vacant.

Complaints Forwarded

Appleton Mayor George Buckley appeared before the committee to forward complaints he had received from concerned citizens. He explained that the city has the right of extraterritorial zoning and could adopt such an ordinance which would allow the council to object to zoning with three miles of the city.

According to county ordinances, mobile home parks may be built only in agricultural zones. Some of the land in the proposed area is zoned heavy industrial while the remainder is agricultural.

Other Sites

She, like all of the area residents who spoke at the hearing, opposed the park plans. Many of the group weren't specifically opposed to a mobile home park, but they objected to the location.

"Why not build it on another site four miles away from all this?" one person asked.

Ed G. Kruse, a realtor who represented the Hoffman Co., a firm which owns 65 acres immediately to the west of the planned park location, said the firm objected to the park because it would be detrimental to the area and would stymie growth in that region.

He added that the company in this Baltimore suburb would not cooperate with the award a "reasonable sum" developers to grant easement or from his former wife, a finance enjoinments for access to the company supervisor, for the support of their 3-year-old son.

Herman Ripp, an Outagamie County supervisor, said bringing a mobile home park into the Doeherer said.

Wife Is Sued for Child's Support

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — A man has sued his wife for child support, claiming she earns about twice what he does.

A hearing was set for June 11 on the petition by Russell E. Doeherer, a Social Security administration employee who said his annual earnings are $6,000.

Doeherer, who was divorced last June, asked a Circuit Court judge to order his wife, a former wife, a finance enjoinments for access to the company supervisor, for the support of their 3-year-old son.

"I'm hesitant to do this, but I'm thinking of the child," Doeherer said.

Are Busses Allowed To Pass Speed Limit?

This feature is one of a series of weekly series bringing together speed governors installed in all questions on highway rules and regulations — how you can excess speed caused by down drive more safely, for yourself grades or strong tail winds, and others — as asked by these prevent the bus from ex Wisconsin motorists, together exceeding the set speed.

Q. I would like to know if various highways to drive, has regularly scheduled busses, such as Greyhound, Badger, or Wis-Bus, which runs nonstop service between Milwaukee and Madison, can exceed the posted speed limits when they are behind their time schedule.

I have been passed by these types of busses and heard that they could do this.

A. To take the most significant item first, busses must always observe the speed limits, just as private automobiles or trucks. The limit is 70 miles per hour on the interstate and 65 on state highways. Representatives of the three bus companies named concur in the statement that any driver caught exceeding the limit must pay his own fine, and have it go on his record with the company.

One company spokesman said, "We start our busses off at the stated time, and the safety and speed conditions along the route determine whether they arrive at the scheduled time. Our schedules are figured close to the speed limit, so there is no way of making up lost time."

The state patrol concurs that all busses are monitored for speeding just as private vehicles, and assures us that no preferential treatment is ever given bus drivers.

As to regulation of the speed, requirements. They are tested every two years, compared with every four years for regular licensees. And at each renewal, they must pass vision, road, and written tests. Partly the reason for this is that they have perhaps the highest crash exposure of any driving group. It speaks well for them that in actual crashes they rank very low.

Of the entire group of school bus drivers, 28.3 per cent are in the 30-39 year age group, 26.6 per cent are in the 21-30 group, and 23.6 per cent in the 41-50 group; the mandatory maximum age is 70, this being the only group of licensees having such a cutoff age. These data rather refutes the general impressions of school bus drivers as being elderly.

The law also blocks a school bus license if the applicant has been convicted of a felony or an offense against public morals within the past five years, or if an applicant lost his license within the past five years, or if operating while intoxicated or recklessly driving.

Q. Is it legal to drive a car in bare feet? If so, where is the law stated in the Wisconsin statutes?

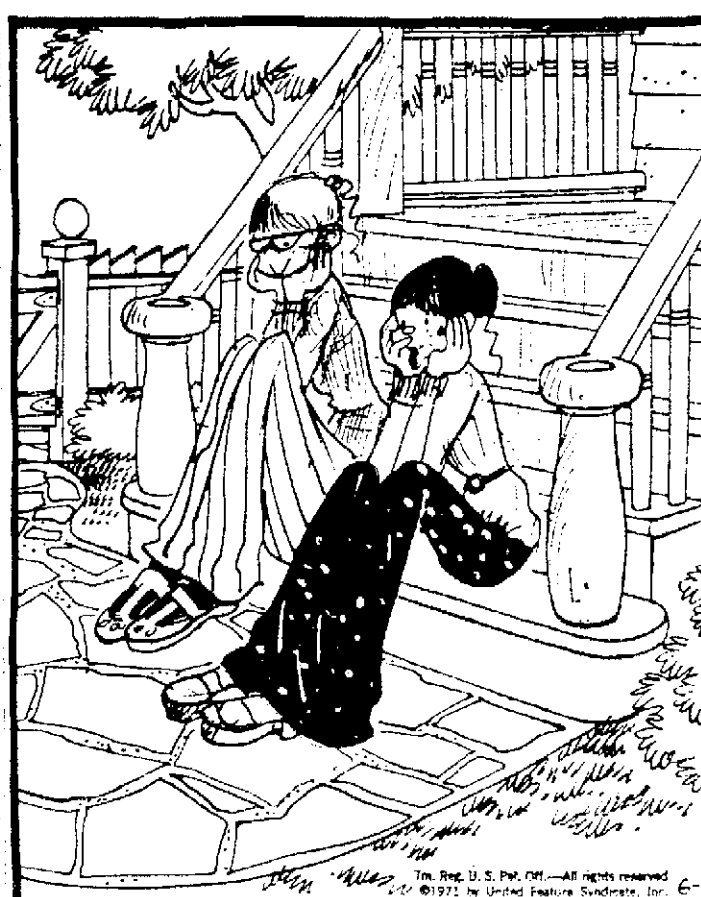

A. There is no law or statute stating whether a driver must wear footwear of any type. Permission is wide open; if you want to drive barefooted, that's up to you.

Q. Several years ago I was injured in an automobile accident and was paralyzed from the waist down. I'm now driving a car with special hand controls. I am eligible to receive a courtesy parking certificate for the physically handicapped. Could you tell me where to get one?

A. Disabled drivers can re-take a special license plate in illeges.

Blue Mediterranean Afloat With Garbage

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A pretty brunette in a bikini stretched out on one of Lebanon's sunny beaches the other day and got up with splashes of sticky tar and oil. Bathers who take a dip in the blue Mediterranean often bump into watermelon rinds, eggshells or raw sewage.

Tons of garbage and raw sewage pour into the mediterranean every day from Beirut and other Lebanese coastal towns. Oil tankers waiting to load at refineries clean their tanks close to shore. The capital's slaughterhouse empties its waste into an area not frequented by bathers, but this often draws a shark or two.

Face Harm
Biologists warn that marine life in the eastern Mediterranean has lost nutrients because dam construction across the Nile River halts the supply of silt. They say the marine life faces more harm unless pollution is curbed.

Owners of the dozen or so shoreline private beach clubs, foreigners and Lebanese have appealed to the government to control the amount and the way in which waste is dumped into the sea. The government says there isn't enough money for modern treatment plants.

Lebanese students find the Palestine guerrillas and educational reforms more attractive causes for demonstrations than ecology, although they too complain about the beaches.

Treat Seawater
Beach club owners have installed swimming pools so they can treat the seawater, but this did not prevent the government from closing them down last summer for a month during a cholera outbreak. Tests showed the water contaminated by sewage.

Michel Nader, owner of the St. Georges Beach Club, considers shoreline pollution a national tragedy but says his complaints of 20 years fall on deaf ears at the ministries.

"This is a tourist country," Nader said. "But before we receive people and publicize the area, we should clean up our house so they can leave happy and say nice things about Lebanon when they get home."

Nine sewage pipes in the Beirut area empty into the sea, some of them less than a mile from the beach clubs. The city, with a population of one million, dumps 600 tons of garbage a day into the sea near poorer quarters of the city on the dubious premise it provides nourishment for marine life.

No Money
"We can't do more than we are doing," said an official in the city health department. "There is no solution—it has been studied carefully—because there is no money."

Plans were approved in 1958 for garbage treatment plants to provide fertilizer for the country's many farms, but red tape and repeated changes in the national government held them up while other projects received funds.

Recently the city government approved a plan for two garbage treatment plants and forwarded it to the national gov-

Region Health Planning and Food Program Funds Backed

Funding of two programs for the remainder of the year was endorsed by the Outagamie County Board's policy and finance committee this morning.

The committee recommended that $3,500 be taken from the wages and salaries fund for the Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program and that $1,000 be taken from the reserve for contingencies for the county's share of operating the eight-county Lake Winnebago Comprehensive Regional Health planning district.

The nutrition program itself first must be approved by the county board while county participation in the regional health planning program was approved in February, 1970.

The nutrition program, Verne Imhoff, University Extension Services representative, explained, is aimed at improving the homemaking capabilities of welfare recipients and low income families.

Teach Meal Planning
Under the program, a nutrition expert would train program aides, drawn from the same welfare and low income ranks, to work on a one-to-one basis with other families in teaching them meal planning and food preparation.

Imhoff said the county would be responsible for 40 per cent of the nutrition expert's salary, plus all office expense. All other costs, he said, including the program aids, would be borne by the federal government.

Supv. G. Allen Bubolz, Appleton, asked whether a problem actually existed in Outagamie County. Supv. Henry Bretting, chairman of the sponsoring agriculture committee, answered, "I believe we do have one and it's an expensive one." He said there were a lot of people who didn't know how to prepare food. If the program could keep them off welfare it would pay for itself, he said.

John Shepard, Appleton Memorial Hospital administrator and one of two county representatives at the present time on the regional health planning board, said the board hopes to adopt bylaws on June 10 and, in lieu of a formal operating budget for the rest of the year, is asking that each of the eight counties provide $1,000.

The money, if approved by the board, would temporarily held pending passage of state legislation clarifying the legality of counties funding that type of organization.

Shepard said that for 1972, Outagamie County would be responsible for 27.89 per cent of the portion of the district budget to be funded locally.

He said they roughly estimate the budget at $30,000 with the federal government paying half.

The remainder is paid according to the equalized valuation of the member counties. Winnebago County would pay the largest share, followed by Outagamie County.

Other counties in the district are Waupaca, Calumet, Fond du Lac, Green Lake, Marquette and Waushara.

The governing board will have 41 members with Winnebago County having seven, Outagamie and Fond du Lac, six each; Waupaca and Calumet, five each; and the others four each.

Shepard said 22 of the 41 must be "consumers" and 19 "pro-

Buckley Wants Zoning Freeze Outside City

Mayor's Bid Would Stop New West Side Mobile Home Park

A proposal to build a 260-unit, 61.5 acre mobile home park near the west edge of Appleton in the Town of Grand Chute has prompted Mayor George Buckley to call for the city to invoke its zoning powers beyond the city limits.

Buckley said this morning following an Outagamie County Zoning Committee hearing that he will ask the Plans Commission to consider the move at its next meeting June 7.

The mayor said the commission in April, 1969, declined to report out for City Council action a similar proposal. "It is my belief," he said, "that the full council should have the right to vote on it one way or the other."

If the commission reports the proposal out next Monday, the city could order an extraterritorial zoning "freeze" before the county board can approve zoning changes necessary for the mobile home park to be developed.

The county committee today tabled the zoning change and scheduled another meeting June ground. One woman showed a deputy a red mark on her wrist after they had struggled. Cries of "woman beater" came from the crowd.

Deputies lined up with their backs against the glass doors as customers and sales persons watched from inside and demonstrators berated the officers, several of whom are Menominees.

The leaders attempted several times to lead the crowd off the porch and all but two or three dozen had returned to ground level and more appeared to be following when someone forced open one of the doors.

In the melee that followed, Peters reached above the crowd and squirted a liquid from a small black canister. The struggle melted as participants on both sides held their faces and eyes.

Strategy Meeting
Otradovic, Powless and John Gauthier, a Menominee student at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, attempted several times to persuade the group to leave and hold a "strategy meeting" on a portion of the lawn nearby.

"We don't need no strategy," replied one of the demonstrators. "You're too conservative, you don't want to go forward," a woman in black slacks and blouse told a woman trying to assist the other leaders. "We fought too hard to get this far," another shouted.

Gradually the group faded back and went to the lawn. A group of younger demonstrators ran the American flag on a pole outside the sales office to half-mast, to cheers from the crowd. Opponents of the demonstrators, an elderly couple, argued with the young people about the treatment of the flag.

Otradovic told the crowd, "I declare Menominee County in a state of emergency." He added that as president of the county group, he "won't be responsible for the actions of any of my people in this state of emergency."

He called for a "strategy meeting" that evening, prompting arguments from others who said they should meet immediately. After several minutes of layers union refused comment, it was learned that no ballot was taken at a meeting attended by about 75 persons Monday.

Mediation Decision
A spokesman, who asked that he not be identified, said the decision to ask for mediation represented the consensus of those at the meeting. He said the mediator should be here by the end of this week. About 650 bricklayers are affected by the contract dispute.

Teamster official Robert Schlieve, whose local represents, both directly and indirectly, some 2,000 truck drivers in the Fox Valley and Lakeshore areas, said it was too early to say if a strike might be called after the Thursday meeting.

Wages, fringe benefits and contract language are at issue in the dispute, it was learned.

indecision. Powless began beating one of the drums that had been used during the march, and others led a snake dance.

A spokesman for the Chicago Indian Village halted the dance, however. "You can't continue this. You'll just keep on going around in circles all your lives," He told them to be at the meeting at 7 p.m.

Powless led the group from the property by holding up a medicine bag made from a whole hide of a weasel and pronouncing a curse on the land office and its occupants. He asked the spirits to make the occupants' warriors fall in battle, their women barren and their children turn their backs on their elders.

The crowd laughed and cheered and followed Powless as he held the furry medicine bag aloft and led them off the property to the beating of a drum.

Smoking Aggravates Buerger's Disease

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband is 71 and was recently diagnosed as having Buerger's disease. How frequently does this occur in men of that age? He has been a heavy smoker, 2 1/2 to 3 packs of cigarettes a day. With this diagnosis he has entirely stopped smoking. We know that such patients have to stop smoking, but has smoking been found to be totally responsible? — G.B.

Buerger's disease is inflammation of the small arteries

No definite cause of the disease has been determined, although most victims have been heavy smokers for a long time. It is very well established that smoking aggravates the disease. Smoking, you know, constricts the small arteries, and when this has occurred constantly for many years, it is not surprising that the inflamed condition of the arteries can result.

However, we still cannot say that smoking is totally responsible for Buerger's disease, because it sometimes afflicts non-smokers, too — but not nearly as often. Once the disease has developed, giving up smoking is positively the first rule of treatment.

I cannot give you any detailed statistics on the incidence of Buerger's disease, but men are affected more often than women, and it has been observed that Jewish men, for whatever reason, seem more likely to develop it.

It ordinarily is detected at an earlier age than in your husband's case, usually somewhere between the ages of 20 and 45, but it can begin in patients who are in their 70s.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes a person to develop piles? My doctor prescribed medication, part of which was a mild laxative, and a cream. All trouble disappeared for a little while. Then it all came back again. What can be done to get rid of piles and prevent them from coming back? — Mrs. J. M.

Heredity (some tendency to weakness in the veins) is sometimes a factor. The biggest cause, however, is usually constipation. I strongly suggest reading my booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids," which you can obtain by sending 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Thosteson care of The Post-Crescent. Local treatment by suppositories and salves may give temporary relief but does not eliminate the situation completely.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Where can I get a diet for osteoporosis, high in calcium and protein? My doctor didn't give me one. — F.M.

You don't need a rigid diet — just make sure that you get plenty of foods each day containing these essentials. High protein foods are a kind of lean meat or fowl, fish, eggs, cheese. Richest (and simplest) source of calcium is milk, whether regular or skim. Two or three glasses a day, plus whatever you get in other dairy products, will assure you of plentiful calcium.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A relative of mine, a young mother, has an overactive thyroid and a noticeable goiter but refuses to take treatment prescribed by her doctor because she can "eat all she wants and not gain an ounce." What are the results of such conduct? — J.S.

Consequences may be a so-called "nervous breakdown," extreme irritability, thyro-toxic heart disease, and various symptoms stemming from pressure of the goiter. I hope she won't get into as much trouble as she most likely will.

"Tips On How To Stop Smoking," by Dr. Thosteson, will help you give up the habit. To receive a copy of his booklet, write to him in care of The Post-Crescent enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope. (Copyright, 1971)

Jennifer Jones, Industrialist Wed In English Channel

LONDON (AP) — Millionaire industrialist Norton Simon and Academy award-winning actress Jennifer Jones were married Sunday on a chartered launch that wallowed in heavy seas outside British territorial waters in the English Channel.

Friends said the couple arranged the 10-minute seagoing ceremony when they "suddenly decided to get married while on a visit to London." Officials said they were unable to marry at once in London because they lacked the necessary residential qualifications.

Simon and Miss Jones were married by a London clergyman, with three unnamed friends of the couple, a customs officer and the boat's owner as the only witnesses, friends said. They added that one member of the party was seasick because of the rough seas.

Miss Jones, 52, wore a trouser suit and floppy leather hat for the ceremony, which included a Shakespeare reading. The couple returned to shore immediately after their marriage and drove off to a honeymoon hideout.

Simon, 64, was defeated by former Sen. George Murphy in the 1970 California Republican primary.

'Laugh-In' Writer Back With Show

Paul W. Keyes Says Conditions Changed From Last Year

By GENE HANDSAKER
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Nine-months ago Paul W. Keyes suddenly quit as producer and chief writer of "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In," declared it was "slanted, vulgar and dirty."

But now he's back in his old job on NBC Television's Monday night laugh fest.

"I left because of conditions I didn't enjoy or approve of," Keyes said Monday, still declining to specify them. "Those conditions no longer exist."

Slipped in Ratings
"Laugh-In" has slipped in audience ratings. Was an old master being called back to give it his special touch?

"I'd be the last person to say that," Keyes replied.

He was with the show as head writer from its inception as a special in October 1967 through its first 2 1/2 years as a weekly hour. In 1968 he was named producer as well.

The show was No. 1 in the ratings two years ago and No. 1 or 2 a year ago, but an NBC spokesman estimates that this past season it averaged between 9th and 13th.

Need New Faces
Keyes, 46, said he thinks the series must woo back young viewers. "The kids who made it, who took up phrases like 'sock it to me' and 'here comes de judge' ... We've got to find fresh, new faces."

Three months ago and again two weeks ago, he said, NBC approached him about returning. Throughout his absence he remained "close personal friends" with stars Dan Rowan and Dick Martin, "and they were involved with NBC's offer," he said.

It includes a TV pilot for the 1972-73 season. Keyes produced and wrote two of the past season's highest rated specials, John Wayne's "Swing Out, Sweet Land" and the recording industry's Grammy Awards.

Date Reportedly Set For Okinawa Return

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese newspapers reported today that the United States and Japan will have ceremonies in Tokyo and Washington June 17 for the signing of the agreement returning Okinawa and the other Ryukyu islands to Japan in 1972. The U.S. Embassy said the date for the signing has not been set but there has been talk of June 17.

A Couple of Gourmets exchange impressions about their favorite foods on the set of Woody Allen's latest zany comedy "Bananas," coming to the Appleton Theater in June. At the right is world famous connoisseur El Exigente, also known best as actor Carlos Montalban, in a key role in the movie; left is the juvenile chimpanzee by the name of Eliot, favorite visitor to the set and an expert on bananas. The movie was made on location in Puerto Rico and the two stars are Allen and Louise Lasser.

New Star on TV Horizon

Who's Val Doonican? Everyone Will Know After Show June 5

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) — Val Doonican walked down Fifth Avenue Thursday afternoon without causing any heads to swivel. If he were to do the same thing in a month or so, autograph hunters would ruin his window-shopping.

Doonican, very big in the British Isles, is destined to become an instant American television star next month.

ABC will present "The Val Doonican Show," a series of 10 variety programs, on Saturday nights starting June 5.

Big in Britain
The singer, on a week's hectic visit to these shores, has been busy trying to build an image. He has appeared with Dick Cavett, taped a show with Mike Douglas and submitted to end-to-end interviews with the press.

Born in Waterford, Ireland, Doonican has been in show business 26 years, doing everything from one night stands, radio and television to command performances. He has endless hit albums and records and his radio and television shows have been British staples for 10 years.

"When I had an offer for an American television show, there were a number of things to consider," he said. "First, nobody here had ever heard of me, so we needed some good guest stars. This was a problem because a lot of American stars dislike doing summer replacement shows—and a lot of others are not available."

He has achieved a pretty good lineup, however. Old friend Patsy Cline accepted his invitation, and that helped prime the booking pump.

Des O'Connor, another popular British TV and music hall star, has a very similar deal with NBC, replacing its Wednesday night "Music Hall" for the second time.

Chipmunk Living In Costly House

CHELYAN, W. Va. (AP) — A chipmunk somewhere in the nearby Campbell's Creek area has a $3,500 nest egg tucked away in its burrow.

State police have charged two sisters, aged 9 and 11, with taking $4,000 from a safe at a local grocery store. Officers said $500 has been accounted for, but that the girl's brother and a friend hid the remainder under a rock in a chipmunk's burrow.

Now no one can remember which rock the money is under. The store owner is offering a $200 reward to the person who finds the money.

Actor Walter Matthau Describes Life Style

Film Success Zoomed After Serious Heart Attack; More Leading Roles

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — "Each day is a bonus, a free ride to me," said actor Walter Matthau.

"The thing that gives me most pleasure in life today is simply being alive. I had a massive heart attack five years ago that was supposed to kill me but didn't.

"A heart attack is a big insult to your psyche as well as your physiology. I believe mine must have changed my personality—and for the better. Anyway, I've gotten more leading film roles since then."

His latest starring vehicle is a screen version of Neil Simon's "Plaza Suite," following smash performances in "The Fortune Cookie," "The Odd Couple," and "Hello, Dolly."

Walter's Theory
Walter, who served as a radio operator aboard a bomber in the second World War and once worked as an errand boy, shipping clerk and waiter, has a theory about heart attacks.

"If you start from nothing and drive yourself to a false victory success, you are almost bound to have a heart attack," he remarked.

His own came after a period during which he overworked, smoked heavily and indulged a passion for spectacular gambling. Now he still works hard but has given up smoking and cut down on his gambling.

"But, of course," he said, smiling, "you can get a heart attack from the strain of standing in line at a $2 window."

"Silly Little Journey"
Mellowed now by early adversity and illness at the peak of his career, Matthau said now he would define life as "a silly little journey" and his philosophy of the journey is this:

"Whatever it is, it isn't that important. Work is more important than the man who does it." Asked what defeats most men in life, he replied:

"They fall in with all of the philosophy that is made up by the haves. This is not consistent with the needs and desires of the have nots. Whenever the have nots try to apply the philosophy of the haves to their own lives, they come up empty."

Nameless Guilt
Walter feels his worst fault is a feeling of nameless guilt.

"I feel terribly guilty, but I don't know what I'm guilty of or why I feel that way."

His best virtue, in his own opinion, is that "I don't take myself too seriously."

"This is a good attitude, also, for anyone in power to have—particularly doctors and politicians," he observed.

"Doctors particularly are such pompous asses"—then as a quick afterthought—"except my doctor, who is a very nice guy."

Matthau, whose first role was that of Polonius in settlement house production of "Hamlet" when he was 14, is convinced but not dismayed by the belief that he has played so many roles that the public has a mistaken image of him.

"My public image is that of an extroverted, happy-go-lucky, spaghetti-throwing lout," he said.

"On the other hand, my image to my wife is that of a very romantic, kind, sweet, gentle, considerate, reasonable, selfless—and oh, yes, sexy—husband and father."

And which is the true image of Walter Matthau?

"Why, naturally the one my wife has," he answered, looking faintly surprised that there should be any doubt about that.

Young Hobby Club New Complications in Game of Tick-Tack-Toe

BY CAPPY DICK
A new complication in the game of tick-tack-toe is presented as today's fun-project for boys and girls. It requires each player in the hatch tick-tack-toe grill on a piece of paper. This should rest on a table as shown in the illustration above.

One player chooses to use "X" as his symbol; the other must use "O." A decision is made as to which player will make the first mark. Then the game begins. From the very start each player must bounce his ball continuously, even when he is marking his symbol on the chart. To win the game a player not only must get three of his symbols in a row, but must keep his ball bouncing as he does so. If a player fails to keep his ball going he loses the game, even if he manages to get three of his symbols in a row.

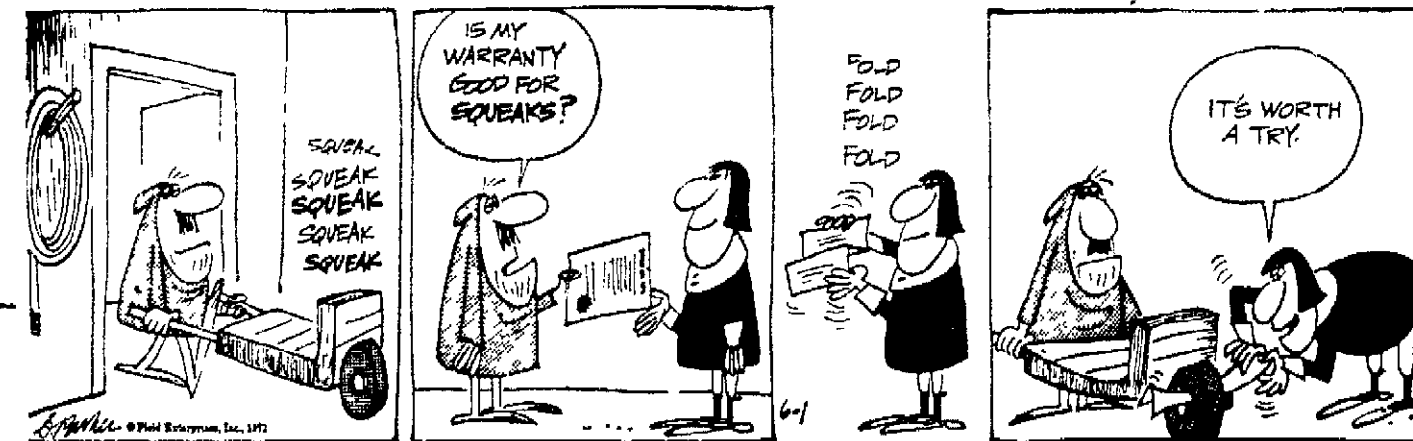

SEND FOR THIS BOOKLET OF PARTY STUNTS! Mothers! If you need new ideas to entertain your children's scout meetings and birthday parties, you'll find 45 of them in Cappy Dick's handy "Birthday Party Stunts" booklet. # Sheriff Believes More Bodies Will be Found YUBA CITY, Calif. (AP) — Sheriff Roy Whiteaker says he's convinced some of the orchard sites his men probed in the search for more mass slaying victims were once dug as graves, then filled in without bodies.

"I hope we're very close to the last grave," Whiteaker said Monday after again ordering his men to search for more possible burial sites like those which have yielded 23 stabbed and hacked bodies.

Whiteaker said that "a couple of the suspected graves which contained no bodies 'appeared to have been dug as graves.'"

One was among three sites where searchers dug Monday and found nothing, the second day no more bodies were found. The other was among earlier diggings, he said.

Whiteaker said Roy Delong told Marysville police on a theory that the murderer might have dug each grave before selecting a victim—and that if none was found returned to fill in the hole to avoid arousing suspicion.

Whiteaker said Roy Delong, 52, of Marysville had been taken into protective custody but declined to say why. Deputies believe he is one of the last persons to see Sigurd E. Beierman, one of the victims, before his body was found in the 19th grave.

Delong told Marysville police May 4 that the last time he saw Beierman was about two months earlier, getting into Corona's van.

The first body was discovered accidentally May 20 by Goro Kaghiro, a farmer who said he spotted an empty grave-size hole in his peach orchard. He returned eight hours later and it filled in. Believing someone had buried stolen property, Kaghiro called deputies to allow digging, he said.

A special Memorial Day Mass was said Monday night at St. Isidore's Roman Catholic church in memory of the 23 victims and to offer prayers for Corona and his family.

"We don't know if Juan Corona is guilty or not," said the Rev. Joseph Bishop in Spanish to the gathering of about 1,300 persons, most of them Mexican-Americans. "Until the jury decides, we should leave the judging to God."

He also described the slain transients and itinerant fruit workers who have no friends or relatives as "the faceless forgotten people."

And he urged "charity and understanding" for Corona's wife and four daughters.

Western Union Employees Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Two unions representing 20,100 employees struck Western Union today, closing its public offices across the country and halting the acceptance and delivery of domestic telegrams, money orders and overseas cables.

The United Telegraph Workers and the Communications Workers of America, both AFL-CIO, walked off the job at 12:01 a.m. after talks had been broken off in the dispute over wages and job security.

Rejecting a company offer of a 20 per cent wage increase over two years, 4 per cent of which hinged on government approval of higher tariffs, the unions demanded a 31 per cent hike over two years.

"We very much regret that the unions representing our employees have chosen to inconvenience the public by calling a strike," the company president, Earl D. Hluburn, said in a statement. "We know that our remaining differences will be equitably resolved — not on the picket line but at the bargaining table."

Service Continuing

Although its public offices were closed, the company said it would maintain government communications services, leased private wires, the Telex and TWX teletype exchanges, various automated electronic data services and the new "mailgram" electronic message service, operated jointly with the post office.

Supervisory and engineering personnel were to fill in for striking employees on the government and business communication services, which are largely automated.

The UTW represents 17,000 teletype operators, clerks and installation and repair technicians across the country. The CWA is bargaining agent for 3,100 such workers in New York and New Jersey.

The company said its "final offer" called for a 6 per cent raise effective June 1, with another 4 per cent when and if the Federal Communications Commission approved higher tariffs. An additional 10 per cent would come in the second year.

A CWA spokesman said the union was demanding an 18 per cent wage increase effective June 1 and 13 per cent more the following year. The average wage of CWA members now is $3.47 an hour, the union said.

In addition to wages, the UTW negotiations involved job security issues including demands for a prohibition of contracting out workers and restrictions on personnel transfers.

Six weeks of bargaining preceded the breakdown in the talks on Sunday.

Mass Murder Suspect Is 'Very Quiet, Well Mannered'

MARYSVILLE, Calif. (AP) — The man arrested in the Yuba City mass slayings sleeps alone in a small jail cell with a light burning night and day, is separated from other prisoners and is described as "very quiet, well mannered."

Juan Vallejo Corona was transferred over the weekend to the 10-year-old Yuba County jail here, a more modern facility than the Sutter County jail in adjoining Yuba City where he was booked last Wednesday.

He is in the only occupied cell among six on one wing of the ground floor felony section. In the other wing, the 14 cells are fully occupied with men held for such crimes as burglary, armed robbery and one attempted murder.

Undersheriff Robert Day says that because of the magnitude of the crimes he is charged with, Corona is kept separate, although not technically in isolation.

"Anytime we get a prisoner of some consequence like this, we keep him separate from the rest of the prisoners," he said.

"They're more comfortable by themselves anyway, and some of the other prisoners can be pretty rude."

Corona hasn't asked for anything special," Day continued. "He's very quiet, well mannered. When we asked him if he was all right, he just said, 'yes.'"

Like the other inmates, Corona is dressed in a one-piece white coveralls—beltless, so an inmate can't hang himself, Day explained.

The cell is 10 feet wide, 12 feet deep and 12 feet high, with three beige walls and "institutional green" steel bars and door for the fourth wall. An aluminum bunk, stool, writing table, sink, toilet and mirror are bolted securely in place.

Single Light

The single light overhead burns brightly from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., then is automatically dimmed the rest of the time to allow the prisoner to sleep and the guards to keep an eye on him when they drop by every 15 to 45 minutes.

In the morning, a guard brings in a specially designed razor—the blade won't come out — for Corona to shave, then takes it away when he's through.

Breakfast is pancakes, eggs or oatmeal. For lunch, he gets soup and crackers—sometimes a sandwich. Dinners are more substantial: Monday night they served ham and yams.

If he wants, a local radio station is piped in over a loudspeaker, playing popular music and news—the top story, of course, often being the orchard murders.

He's allowed to read just about anything he wants. So far he's pored through a handful of news and sports magazines, Day said.

Sutter County Sheriff Roy Whiteaker, who still has legal jurisdiction over the prisoner, said "Corona can receive visitors on only one day a week—except for his family and his attorney, and they can come just about anytime they want."

"None of the other prisoners has shown any interest in Corona, at least they're not talking about him when we're around."

Detaining of Jet Tied To Arrest of Cubans

MIAMI (AP) — A Pan American World Airways spokesman speculated Monday that a hijacked jet with 69 persons aboard was being detained in Havana because four Cuban fishing boat captains were arrested and jailed in Key West on charges of illegally fishing in American waters.

"We don't have knowledge of it, but we've been thinking that it might lengthen the stay of those passengers if the Cuban captains aren't released," said Robert Bohne, public relations director of Pan Am's office here.

Cuba remained silent today about its reasons for the three-day detention of the jet.

Havana Radio acknowledged Saturday's hijacking for the first time Monday. But it did not respond to a plea from Pan Am President Najeeb Halaby to release the Boeing 707, its 60 passengers and nine crew members.

In a Miami-monitored broadcast, the official voice of Fidel Castro's Communist regime said the plane was diverted from its Caracas-to-Miami flight by a "Venezuelan youth who claimed political reasons."

After the broadcast, Havana radio then dwelled on the fishing boat captains.

Flight 442 was commandeered by a hijacker who reportedly grabbed a woman passenger and threatened her with a knife, forcing the pilot to fly to Havana.

The plane began its trip Saturday in Buenos Aires with 21 passengers. Thirty-nine more boarded in Caracas.

Caracas police said Monday they had not identified the hijacker. They said a Cuban-American, Hugo Delgado, told them he was attacked by an unidentified man in the men's room at Caracas airport.

Delgado said the attacker took his personal documents. Delgado was to have boarded the plane.

The State Department said Sunday it received word from the Swiss Embassy, which represents U.S. interests in Cuba, that "all the passengers and crew are doing well."

Officials say the plane has been held in Havana longer than any other domestic airline since the hijackings began a decade ago.

Meanwhile, as Cuba complained about the four jailed fishing captains awaiting a hearing in Key West, four fishing boat crew members who were not charged were released Monday by the Coast Guard.

A Coast Guard cutter delivered them to the parent boats of the Cuban fishing fleet some 15 miles off Key West in the Florida Straits.

The four small boats and eight fishermen were seized near the Dry Tortugas Islands last Wednesday.

Man Drowned After Falling in Boat on Thursday

A man who drowned in Lake Winnebago Thursday apparently fell in his boat first and was knocked unconscious before tumbling into the water, an autopsy has revealed.

The victim was Vernon R. Mereness, 68, of 313 Park St., Kaukauna.

Calumet County Coroner Leroy Hughes, who conducted the autopsy, found a severe bruise extending from Mereness' right cheek bone up to the right temple. Hughes said the mark probably was caused by a fall in the boat that knocked Mereness unconscious.

Mereness' body was found in the lake Friday morning by Menasha police skindivers who had been called to assist Calumet County authorities. Hughes believed the time of Mereness' death was Thursday morning.

Authorities investigated after Mereness' empty boat was sighted Thursday evening anchored about 900 feet offshore, one-half mile south of the High Cliff State Park boat landing. Mereness' jacket and fishing equipment were in the boat and his car was parked at the boat landing.

There's a Zoo in Room 117 at McKinley School

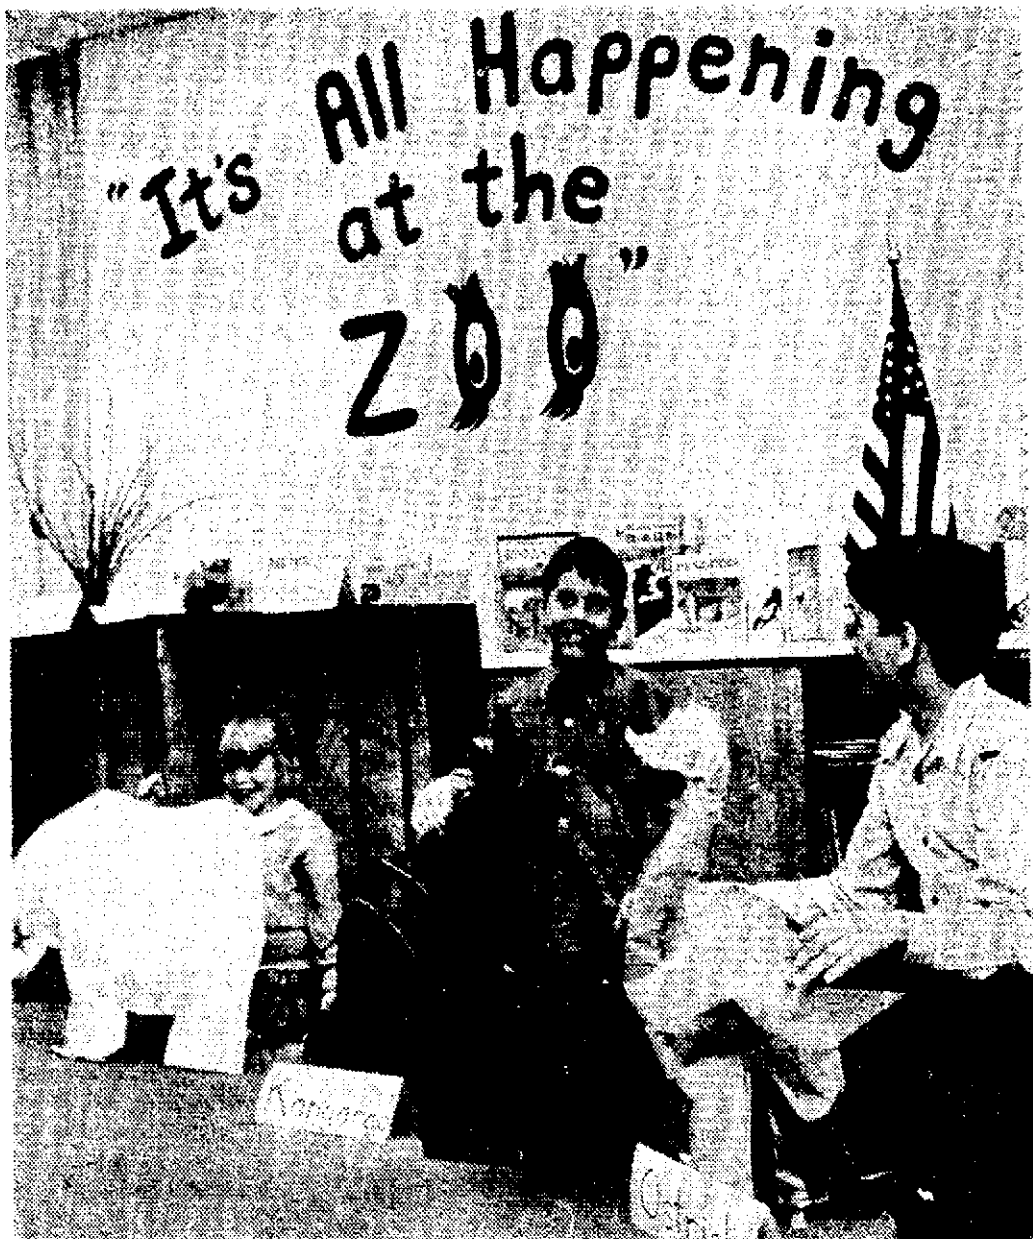

"It's All Happening at the Zoo" is the theme of a unit of study that has absorbed the attention of the children in Room 117 at McKinley School. What started as a field trip to the Milwaukee Zoo where the children could view real animals grew into the idea of constructing their own zoo after returning to their classroom.

Starting the project by looking in picture books to see not only the animals' sizes in relation each other but also their natural colorations, the children then drew outlines of the creatures on paper cutting a second identical half. After painting them, they were then partially stapled so that they could be stuffed with, of all things, strips of the Post-Crescent!

From this project has come almost a complete unit of teaching. Each child had to read something about the animal he made and give a report on it to the class. Miss Ellen Kaskilke, classroom teacher, and Miss Lynn Kagelman, student teacher from Oshkosh State University, agreed the children learned concepts of big and little, had lessons in counting and in identification, and had related most of their class discussion and their written work to their zoo.

And although the class devoted two full afternoons to making their individual animals, it has turned out to be a total teaching unit that has sustained interest for almost a month.

the stately old elephant with his friend David Schuh hide from all of the other animals in room 117.

A Hippopotamus is a mighty big animal, Debbie Mirkes says, as she proudly shows off the one she made from paper and paint and stuffed with Post-Crescent. At left, Perry Rahn and his zebra stand behind the seal and the tiger and Billy Liethen and Janet Zehren.

Ceiling-Hung Window Shades

A ceiling-hung installation for window shades is enormously versatile. It makes light of the ever-growing use of sliding door-windows because the shades can pull up out of the way when one wants to go outside. This same, easy-do installation will avoid the necessity for drilling in aluminum-framed windows, and last but not least, it does an interesting decorative job as well. Coupled with ceiling-hung curtains and hung reverse-roll to hide the roller, or used alone, it will hide the wall above the window giving the impression of added height.

Junior Womans' Spring Fling Raises $11,236

Mrs. David Weiland, general chairman of the Appleton Junior Womans Club Spring Fling, has announced that a record-breaking $11,236 was raised for nine community service programs. Participating will be the New Hope Nursery, Community Activity Center, "Y" Teen Center, Villa Hope, Children's Theatre, Citizens Alcoholism Services, Inc., Appleton Drug Council, Sole Singers and the ABC Program.

Wise Investment

Choosing a mattress on cost alone is not always an economy. Mattresses—even bad ones—last, and it's not easy to sleep on a mistake for five years. Pay the most you can afford for new mattresses and box springs—it's a wise investment. Another wise investment is a mattress made of latex foam rubber. These mattresses are luxury bedding and cost no more than quality innersprings. Latex foam is totally durable since there are no moving parts, wires, or tufting buttons to break down.

Psychology's a Help in Photography

BY JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeature Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — Getting good pictures of youngsters involves the science of psychology as much as the art of photography, declares famed children's portraitist Josef Schneider, who qualifies in both fields.

"A kid is as individual as a thumbprint and you have to be able to understand what makes him tick," explains the soft-spoken man who has a degree in psychology and an international reputation in photography. "You must interpret the things he does and use them to your own end."

Schneider, who in the past 30 years has photographed royalty, numerous celebrities' offspring and children involved in big advertising accounts, at one time was a psychologist in the New York City public school system.

There he became interested in photography in connection with his use of visual aids. Known for his rapport with children, he was often pressed into service to help established photographers deal with small fry.

"When I saw the apprehension the big boys had when they had to work with kids I decided to go into photography myself. It was more interesting and there was more money than in what I was doing," recalls the mustached, rumpled-haired Schneider, who has found his psychological background invaluable in his work with the under-5 set.

"When a kid walks into this studio I watch him like a hawk, give him time to play, decide whether I must work fast or slow," he says. Not only is the child given time to play, but also fascinating things to play with. In Schneider's Manhattan studio the walls are lined with shelves holding toys for every age level mobiles hang from the ceiling and on the floor are rocking horses and wheel toys enough to make the shyest child forget he's on camera.

"The child must be able to lose himself in a world of play and then you get your picture," continues Schneider, who often turns playmate himself to put the subject at ease. "You must have a sensitivity to the kid, determine his strong points and try to capture the expression that's characteristic."

The toys themselves should in general be excluded from the picture since they tend to compete with the features, he advises. Also to be avoided is loose and wrinkled clothing with strong patterns and too vivid colors, which can be distracting.

For the past few years Schneider has used color exclusively, which he considers the proper medium for portraits. "You see in color so you fool your eye with black and white," he points out. "You can take the color negative and make a black and white but you can't do the reverse."

Mothers usually prefer smiling pictures, he notes, but if the eyes don't smile along with the mouth, it won't work. "The eyes are very powerful—they make or break the picture," he says. "You try to get the beginnings of a smile."

The photographer cautions parents to avoid making a picture-taking appointment for periods when the child is tired. He suggests that after a nap or a meal are good times and encourages mothers to feed their toddlers at the studio, where there is even a crib for a nap.

"At about a year a baby becomes 'clingly' and here the mother can be helpful. I let her hold him till he gets it out of his system," he says. "All kids get fed up in 10 minutes and they'll get fed up with clinging to their mother too. "The 2-year level is a very difficult one," he goes on. "The child is very perverse and his favorite word is no. So don't meet him head-on and never ask 'do you want to do so-and-so'."

"Three is a delightful age because children have outgrown the negative stage.

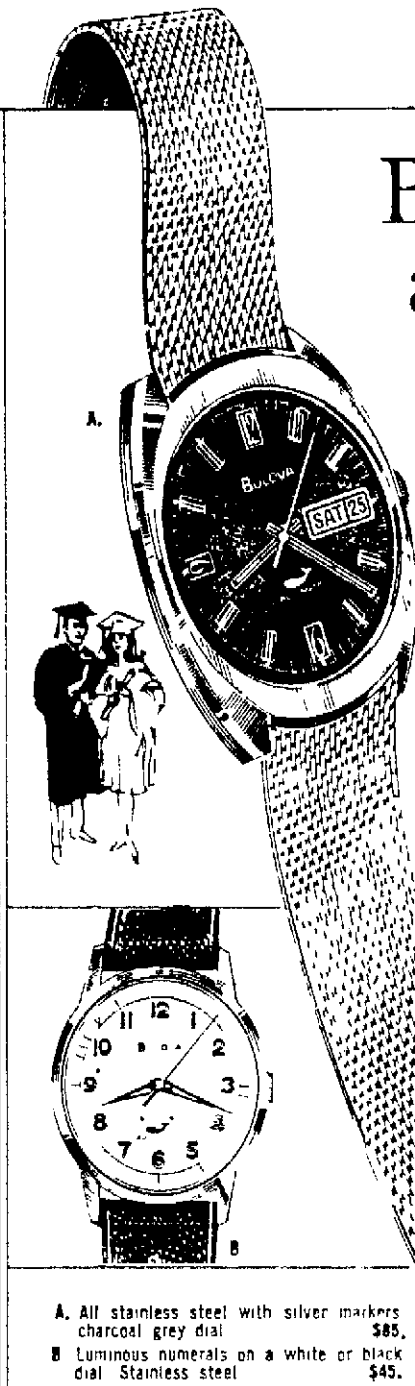

have become more social-minded and love people. At 4 they begin again to assert themselves, to test you to see how much they can get by with. They know they're being photographed and a smart photographer has to try different techniques to rid them of their self-consciousness. When they reach age 5 they're cooperative and no problem."

Painted Shades

Painted window shades have had a long and interesting history. From the late 18th century on when shades were first developed, artists painted on them and some shades are real treasures. As a young man, Renoir made his living painting shades! But you don't have to be a professional artist. It isn't difficult to paint freehand, to stencil or to "spray paint" simple graphics with oil, acrylic or vinyl paints. Whatever the method, one should always work on a surface large enough to support the shade until the paint is dry. And always test a scrap of shade cloth first, to make sure shade and paint are compatible.

Where There's a Wig There's a New Woman

By AP Newsfeatures

Results of the first motivational research on women's wig buying, commissioned by one of the country's wig manufacturers, reveals new clues to the female personality. The Rubicon report found that wearing a wig allows a woman to fantasize that she is a different person than before, that married men like to see their wives in a variety of wigs—like "a different wife every night"—that women who wear wigs in colors and styles very different from their own hair tend to be more confident of their attractiveness, that her children's disapproval sometimes deters a woman from buying a wig, and that a woman is more apt to buy a wig if she feels her sexual relationship with a man is secure.

According to the report by Motivational Programmers, Inc., which surveyed women between 18 and 40 in the New York metropolitan area, in Los Angeles and in Chicago, "Some women feel like a wholly different person wearing a wig."

It reports that a significant percentage of women who wear blonde or red wigs "feel and act sillier, or, according to one young girl, 'flighty—spaced out.' Other women report that they wear wigs to parties to feel "kicky" and "playful."

"Being a blonde, a redhead, a brunette has many emotional meanings for women," the report states. "Each evokes its own image of a kind of woman and life style."

"A wig has tremendous psychological powers," it adds, "capable of handling the inferiority feelings that many housewives have."

Ex-Model Favors Her Life in Animal World

By HILMI TOROS
Associated Press Writer

TIVOLI, Italy (AP) — To one of Europe's former top fashion models, one big happy family means 20 horses, seven tortoises, four dogs, a cow, a pig and a cat whose "godfather" is a dog.

"I love animals," says British-born Jill Pratt. "In fact, I get along better with animals than with human beings."

Mrs. Pratt says that's why she gave up a lucrative career as a top fashion model, opting for the world of animals. She now lives on a secluded farm below the hills of Tivoli 15 miles outside of Rome.

Tall, dark-haired and shapely in her 40's, Mrs. Pratt still looks like a model. But now instead of mixing in the high fashion world, she breeds animals, delivers them at birth, trains them, sees them grow up and die.

"I belonged to the hunting, fishing and shooting crowd in Somerset, England, as a child," she said recently. "Even when modeling my love for animals never died."

For all her present seclusion, she is by no means unknown in Italy and Europe.

Former Model, Jill Pratt, holds the first horse-training license ever to a woman in Italy. She admits that she gets along better with animals than with human beings. (AP Wirephoto)

She is, above all, the English woman who trains horses in Italy for "win-place-or-show" placings in European thoroughbred races. For her skill, Italy granted her the first horse training license issued to a woman in a spot that men dominate and women usually only watch.

She once trotted the globe in search of better breeds and wound up buying seven horses from the Soviet Union. In training, Mrs. Pratt rides the horses herself. She considers her training technique a secret.

She is also a women's lib advocate in Tivoli. The helpers in her animal school are all peasant women from the town.

"I snatch the women from the kitchen and show them how they can train animals, just like me," Mrs. Pratt says. "They are a bit shy at first but get used to it later, although their husbands still don't see why the wives should bother with animals."

Mrs. Pratt also is known, through Italian television and newspapers, as the custodian of the interest of animals. She often speaks out against cruelty to animals. Her pride, besides the champion race horses she breeds and trains—like classic winner Juliet—is a kitten she found injured in a street near Tivoli.

sun soc ilndent ex-models favors "I took her to the farm and she was tended and milked by my dog," she said. "They understand each other so well that the dog became her 'foster mother.' Like a 'godfather' the dog even protects her from other cats."

Every time Mrs. Pratt travels to Rome, cats and dogs fight like cats and dogs to come along with her. She often takes them for a stroll through the ruins and boulevards of the capital.

In Rome, however, Jill Pratt also is of a diminishing breed that spurs taxis in favor of the carrozzelle, the horse-drawn carriages. The slow carriages make Rome's hopeless traffic bottleneck worse, but she never minds that.

"Even if I go to a formal dinner party, I must take the carriages," she says. "Just to touch the horse on the forehead if for nothing else."

Rome's vetturini, carriage drivers, remember her as the only woman who will take time to stop by the horses and talk to them—in Italian, French and English—and then, to the surprise of on-lookers, open their mouths to check if the teeth are healthy.

Now There's a Rock Garden!

BY ERMA BOMBECK

For the past several years some of the parents I know have had real concern about the effect of loud rock music. (Like, will it make you barren? Destroy your taste buds? Make your hair fall out? Or get you a medical discharge from the Army?)

Sylvia Swift, the daughter of a friend of mine, decided to conduct an interesting experiment on the subject to find out whether or not rock music did, in fact, have an effect on living things.

On the porch, she placed a large pot of petunias. Nearby, she placed a phonograph heaped with records of Jerry Vale, Perry Como, Lester Lamin and Florian Zabach.

In the kitchen, she put an identical pot of petunias. Next to them she placed a transistor tuned in full volume to the local rock station.

On the first day, the porch petunias swung lazily as Perry warbled "Love Makes The World Go Round".

Meanwhile, in the kitchen, there was little change in the blossoms as Blood, Sweat And Tears were in full sway.

On the third day the porch petunias drooped a little as Jerry Vale crooned his way through a 33 1-3. The kitchen petunias seemed to flourish under the gust of Aretha Franklin.

By the end of the week, the porch petunias were shriveled and limp and beginning to brown around the edge from inertia. I was there when Sylvia went in to examine her kitchen petunias which had been assaulted by hard rock.

"Mother, how are my rock records affecting the petunias today?"

Her mother jumped as her eye caught sight of her daughter. "Don't you ever knock?" she asked irritably.

Sylvia fondled the blooms. "Would you look at these petunias?" she said.

"There is no need to shout," said her mother. "I'm not deaf. . . am I?"

"The color is good, the stems are firm and they have even begun to multiply. Do you know I think I have proved conclusively that rock music is not detrimental to living things? As a matter of fact, it stimulates growth."

I looked at Sylvia's mother who had been trapped in the kitchen for a week with those lousy petunias and rock music and thought to myself, "What doth it profiteth a woman to grow six feet tall when she is cowering in a fetal position in the broom closet?"

When Margaret Decker and Viola Choplosky check their powder, it's not a case of vanity.

They're dynamite blasters, the only women licensed by Pennsylvania and among only a handful in the nation.

Mrs. Choplosky does her blasting on the family flagstone quarry near Hop Bottom in Susquehanna County. Across the state, in Pittsburgh, Mrs. Decker is on call

Mrs. Kessler Heads District Nurses Group

Election of officers for the Appleton District Nurses took place recently at the annual dinner meeting at Ridgeway Country Club.

Mrs. Marion Kessler was seated as president for the coming year. Officers elected or remaining in office are: Mrs. Julianne Murphy, president elect; Mrs. Helen Greve, vice president; Mrs. Virginia Lemon, secretary and Mrs. Betty Singler, treasurer.

Named to the board of directors were Mrs. Viola Wochos, Miss Betty Schneider and Mrs. Betty Sullivan while Mrs. Evelyn Ziemke, Mrs. Mabel Pagel and Miss Mary Howden were appointed to the nominating committee.

Miss Josephine Balaty, education consultant from the State Division of Nursing, was an honored guest at the event.

Women Keep Powder Dry

to blast any rock holding up an excavation project.

If it hadn't been for their husbands, the two ladies would know dynamiting only as a word.

The Choploskys live on a 200-acre farm where they operate the quarry as well as a dairy. They have eight children, aged from 1 to 25 years.

"We've always worked as a family unit," Mrs. Choplosky, 44, said. "I usually set the charges." Her husband, Algerd, and their sons drill the holes for the charges.

Although she got her license only last November, blasting is not new to Mrs. Choplosky. "I've been blasting for 19 years, but they never enforced the law until last summer," she said.

Mrs. Decker, a 34-year-old mother of three, became Pennsylvania's first women dynamiter in December 1969. She hasn't set off any charges yet — her husband Joe has been the one so far—but, as she says: "There might be a time when he'll need me."

The Deckers run an excavation firm that digs trenches for utility lines.

Mrs. Decker spends a lot of time on a job site supervising the placing of charges by a crew of six men.

Practicality prompted her to get a license, she said. "My husband was working on two jobs at the time and, kidding, I said, 'I think I'll go in and take the test.'"

A few weeks later she had her license.

But there's one thing Mrs. Decker won't do—jackhammer the holes for the charges.

"I'll check to see if they're right, pack the charges, wire them and pop them—but no digging."

Margaret Decker, one of only two licensed women dynamite blasters in Pennsylvania, is set to push the plunger. The 34-year-old, 5-foot-2 blonde, works side by side with her husband, Joe, in their excavating business. (AP Wirephoto)

There's a Shade For Any Window

Shade problems have gone out the window! There is now no window, be it casement, skylight, studio, picture, bow, bay or jalousie that cannot be shaded to perfection. Even the slant-top cathedral type, and the 12-foot window wall that once defied solution can now be treated to a variety of interesting decorative effects, thanks to the many new and imaginative installation techniques available to the homemaker today.

A shade works on a very simple mechanism, and to operate correctly, needs only to be installed on small metal brackets. Some are designed to fit inside the window frame, others can be mounted outside, on the face of the frame. One style permits a shade to be hung from the ceiling or from the underside of a beam or reveal. Heavy brackets are now available for extra large shades that must span picture windows.

A sill type handles the "bottom-up" installation, in which a smooth, cord-and-pulley mechanism rolls the shade "up" instead of down. These will give you light and air and privacy control with a view.

Women Make the News

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"We are 51 per cent of the population, but are regarded as the minority. A girl can want marriage and a family and also the opportunity to use all that talent and skill she has been told she had while she was in school."

Elizabeth Duncan Koontz, director of the Labor Department's Women's Bureau.

"That sounds nice for a girl who has never had a bank account. Where in the world will I wear that mink?"—Michele McDonald who, as the new Miss USA, wins $5,000 in cash, a $5,000 mink coat, a wardrobe and $5,000 in personal appearances.

"We believe in the myth of the melting pot. But if you're physically identifiable, then you're not allowed to melt in."—LaDonna Harris, Indian wife of Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris, at a conference sponsored by Americans for Indian Opportunity.

"In the old days we had to support the Fund; the studio bosses called all the people under contract together and told us we were obliged to give one per cent of our salaries to the Fund. So we did, and it didn't hurt. Nowadays there is no studio control. These new people come along and start making big money, and they feel no loyalty to the industry."—Rosalind Russell, campaigning for the Motion Picture and Television Relief Fund.

Your Problems

Perhaps Handkerchief Scared Her Mom

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I don't know how it is up North, but in Alabama it is considered very bad manners to blow one's nose in public. I'm sure you are aware that Southerners are noted for their couch and refinement.

I was reared to be a lady. I did not hear the sound of nose-blowing until I was in high school. (It was a rude boy who had moved to Prattville from Illinois.) Now it seems that wherever I go I hear people go "honk, honk, honk"—like a pack of geese.

I know there are times when one must wipe his nose but it seems to me that when a person needs to blow, he can excuse himself. Especially in a restaurant. I don't know of a single decent eating place in this country that doesn't have a bathroom where a person could go to perform this delicate act. Print this letter, please, Ann. Perhaps public nose-blowers don't know how they appear to refined, well-reared folks. —Gone With the Wind

Dear Goner: I agree that people ought not to go "honk, honk" in dining rooms, but a mutated blow-wipe, if done inobtrusively should not undo you so completely. Your excessive sensitivity to nose-blowing suggests that perhaps your mother was scared by a handkerchief.

DEAR ANN: I'd like to comment on the woman who said she was ready to resign from the human race because so many men had made passes at her for no earthly reason. She described herself as "plain, overweight, a home-loving type, who had never given any man an iota of encouragement." Yet the delivery boy made eyes at her, the TV-repairman man kissed her on the back of the neck and the minister grabbed her in the middle of a political conversation.

I know the type so well. I have danced with them at the club and noticed that they move in a most provocative fashion. I have caught their glances in a crowded room. They ask for a light at dinner parties — and hold my hand steady a moment too long. Their little quips are often triple-edged, and they look so innocent — as if they don't know what they are saying. These women are indeed sending out coded messages, as you suggested. Men who wish to break the code know how to do so. Those who are not interested simply pretend not to get the signals. So you were right again, as usual. I hope "Mrs. Ready to Resign" got your message. —R.D.F.

Dear R.: If she didn't get mine, I'm sure she got yours. It came through loud and clear. Thanks for improving on my original statement.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 15-year-old girl and am very mature for my age. I could pass for 17 both physically and mentally. The problem is I wear braces on my teeth. The boy I like a lot also wears braces. I know he wants to kiss me, and I want to let him, but I once read in your column about two kids who wore braces. They kissed and the braces got hooked together and it was very embarrassing.

Any advice on how kids with braces should kiss? —Donna

Dear Donna: Carefully.

What is French kissing? Is Opening lead: King of hearts.

Oscar for the best actor of the year and has had five other Oscar nominations. He retired from the U. S. Air Force Reserve as a brigadier general, is a trustee of Claremont College, Calif., and a member of the executive board of the Los Angeles Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Jimmy Stewart also finds time to play a good game of bridge. Witness his analysis in the play of today's game contract. He held today's South cards.

East's raise over North's double probably helped North-South reach the five-diamond game. After Stewart entered the bidding voluntarily at the three level, North cue-bid three hearts to invite game. Stewart was quick to accept with a cue-bid of his own, and North bid five diamonds.

Against West's lead of the heart king, Stewart found the winning line of play. He won the ace of hearts in dummy and led a low diamond to his ace.

The jack of diamonds followed, finessed successfully. West's diamond queen was picked up, and Stewart trumped a heart to return to his hand.

A low spade to dummy fetched West's king, captured by dummy's ace. The spades were all high and Stewart was able to discard one of his clubs on dummy's fourth spade. He was left with only two club losers and made 11 tricks and his contract.

Was Stewart clairvoyant, or had he peeked in somebody's hand? Neither. He analyzed the situation correctly.

He deduced that the ace and king of clubs were not in West's hand, since the chances were good that West would have chosen to lead the club king from a holding of A-K. From this analysis, he knew that if he played the clubs himself he would have to lose three club tricks. Therefore, he had to find a favorable situation in spades to provide for a club discard.

What about the finesse of the diamond queen? This play was not luck either. Since West was presumed to have started with only one club honor, Stewart decided to play West for the diamond queen to justify his opening bid.

Excellent analysis and confident execution by Stewart brought home the contract. A typical Jimmy Stewart performance.

Government Tackles Problem of Noise

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE
WASHINGTON — The latest noise from the nation's capital is the sound of government and industry getting together to reduce the growing level of noise in the environment.

The Environmental Protection Agency recently set up an Office of Noise Abatement and Control to look into the causes and sources of excessive noise and determine their effect on the general public.

The office is expected to determine what physical effects come from various levels of sound, set maximum levels for populated areas and also consider the effects of man-made noises on animals and property.

(The last item would include effects from sonic booms.)

The office is empowered to hold public hearings and conduct research. A report of its findings is to be presented to Congress by the end of the year.

Attacks Program

The problem of noise also was attacked in the recent report of the Citizen's Advisory Committee on Environmental Quality. It said:

"Noise degrades our environment no less than the more tangible pollutants, particularly in our cities . . . And while noting that the government is becoming increasingly concerned, it said much more needs to be done at all levels of government."

It said most of the attention has been concentrated on aircraft noise and suggested that more attention be given to motor vehicles, especially construction equipment, lawnmowers, snowmobiles and mechanical devices.

Only a few weeks later, a business group issued a report describing the nuisance of noises from "leisure time" products. These include motorcycles, snowmobiles, pleasure boats, golf carts, chain saws, rotary power mowers, riding mowers, edgers and snow blowers.

Advisory Group

The report came from a subcommittee of the National Industrial Pollution Control Council, an industry advisory group set up by the Commerce Department to report on what business is doing about pollution. Chairman of the subcommittee is Ralph Evinrude of boat motor fame.

Although admitting that noise "is fast becoming a psychological hazard to many people as well as a physiological problem," the Evinrude panel said noise from leisure products is "not a serious problem."

It also sounded an optimistic note, saying that industry already has made great progress in cutting engine noise, especially in golf carts and pleasure boats. It added that as the public demands less noisy products, industry will be given an incentive to make them.

But the subcommittee recommended that federal standards be set in order to clear up the confusion of varying state laws on the subject. Its list of average noise levels in decibels showed that snowmobiles are loudest with 118 decibels at the user's ear, followed by chain saws at 115, motorcycles with more than 240 cc engines at 112 and motorcycles with less than 240 cc engines and all-terrain vehicles both at 105.

In comparison, the decibel level at the user's ear was listed at 95 for edgers, riding mowers and inboard-outboard boats (at a location eight feet forward of the engine center line); 92 for rotary power mowers and 85 for leaf blowers.

The subcommittee also lists proposed standards for 1973, 1976 and 1983, plus a summary of state laws. For a copy of ple, voted again to sponsor Paul Glass for the "Estari" scholarship. This is the third year he has received this award that is given to young people in religious training.

A resolution and prayer were offered for the late Mrs. Edwin Gayhart, who was a former member of the chapter.

Anyone having dishes, utensils or towels from the kitchen at the Masonic Temple is asked to return them by June 3, when an inventory is to be taken.

Mrs. James Rogers will show slides taken on a recent trip to Israel at the next meeting of the Eastern Star.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Clarence Barker, chairman, Mrs. A. C. Fritz and Mrs. N. E. Wiese.

GI's in Texas Set Withdrawal Date

BY ART BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON — A U.S. Army lieutenant friend, a native of New York, has just written from Fort Hood, Tex., informing me that a movement has been organized on the base to get all American troops out of Texas by the first of the year.

"There are still 200,000 American GIs stationed here in Texas," he wrote, "and most of them would go home tomorrow if they could."

The lieutenant said that American soldiers have no idea what they are doing in Texas and refuse to accept the Pentagon's word that they are there to protect the Alamo.

"The natives don't want us," he writes, "and our presence causes all sorts of difficulties."

"First there is the language problem. The American troops refuse to learn Texan, and the Texans refuse to speak American. This leads to serious misunderstandings."

"Secondly, there is the question of size. Most American GIs are at least a head taller than Texans, and this gives the Texans a terrible inferiority complex. The American GI speaks of his Texas counterpart with contempt and derision, and the Texan thinks of the American GI as a big brute who has no feeling for ancient Texas traditions. This clash of cultures has led to fist fights and bottle throwing in bars."

"Finally there is the question of Texas women. Texas women are attracted to American GIs, not only because they consider them better-looking than Texas men, but invariably they have more money and charm. Texas men have become bitter about this and most Texas women who marry a GI are socially ostracized if they remain in the country."

"But the real problem, as far as the American GIs are concerned, is that they don't understand what they are doing in Texas in the first place. Every president has given a different reason why U.S. soldiers should be there. Some have said that the Americans are there to protect the Texans from being overrun by the Mexicans.

"Other presidents have said the troops are there to assure that Texas has honest elections, something that has been denied Texans since it joined the Union.

"Some presidents have defended sending troops to Texas on the grounds that we made a commitment to Sam Houston, and the United States would lose its credibility if it backed down at this late date.

"President Johnson insisted we needed American troops in Texas to prevent supplies from coming up the Perdenales River. President Nixon said Saturday we had to be there to interdict the L.B.J. Trail.

"But the truth of the matter is, everyone in Texas is getting rich on the American GI, and all we're doing is perpetuating a government that at the least is suspected of monkeying with the state banking laws."

My lieutenant friend concludes his letter by saying, "It is for this reason that our Get our boys out of Texas now" movement was formed. A recent survey indicated that while 65 per cent of all Texas natives were for our being in Vietnam, only 10 per cent were for our being in Texas.

"At the same time 83 per cent of all American GIs polled said they'd rather be in Vietnam than in Texas.

"Our movement is dedicated to the proposition that only Texans can help Texans, and by maintaining foreign troops on Texas soil we are preventing the natives from deciding their own destinies.

"If you agree with the sentiments of our movement, send a wire or letter to your senator or congressman. It's time this country admitted that Davy Crockett made a mistake."

Milwaukee had tied the game in the seventh without a hit as John Briggs walked, moved to second on a sacrifice, to third on a balk and scored on a bounce.

Lefty Bill Barnes and manager "Boss" Bowlin combined their talents Monday night to lead the Wisconsin Rapids Twins to a 5-1 Midwest League victory over the Appleton Foxes at Goodland Field.

A slim turnout of 219 fans braved a chilly northwest wind that whistled directly in from center field with a gusto that found better than half of the customers wrapped in blankets or sleeping bags throughout the contest.

Tonight, first place in the Northern Division will be at stake when the Foxes begin a 3-game series in Cedar Rapids. The Cardinals lead Appleton by 8 percentage points.

would have had a shutout had not been for a wild pitch uncorked in the third inning.

Manager Bowlin, who plays shortstop for the Twins, broke the game open in the seventh inning (much to the chagrin of the partisan fans) when he slapped a double in the right field corner with bases loaded and three runs scored. Bowlin then added a fourth run of the inning when Ken Knight singled to left complete the scoring for the victors.

Roger Metzger with a double in the seventh. Willie Mays, whose eighth-inning homer tied the game, 1-1, raced home from third on Tito Fuentes' sacrifice fly in the 11th to carry San Francisco past New York for the Giants' fifth straight victory.

Infield Hit
Mays drew a walk off Mets' starter Jerry Koosman, took second on a sacrifice and advanced to third as Alan Gallagher beat out an infield hit off reliever Danny Frisella. Then Fuentes lined out to Tommie Agee in right field to score Wondrous Willie.

Jose Cardenal drove in the winning run with a two-out single in the eighth inning to pace St. Louis over Atlanta as Louis Brock's 26-game hitting streak ended. Brock struck out twice and bounced out two times in four appearances.

Ruchie Allen crashed a two-run homer in the third inning and reliever Jim Brewer saved Don Sutton in an eighth-inning jam for Los Angeles.

Green Bay Team Wins Jitter's Title

616 Club's Fels Blanks Rose Hill Bar

MENASHA — Fred Fels effectively scattered six hits as the 616 Club of Green Bay blanked Rose Hill Bar of Kaukauna, 3-0, for the championship of Jitter's Memorial Day softball classic here Sunday night. Ron Dart of 616 Club, who scored on a homer by Benkowski in the sixth inning, was chosen the most valuable player while Fels was named second most valuable.

Cub Injuries, Weak Bullpen Big Factors

Leo's Days Numbered?

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Leo Durocher won't deny that his days as manager of the Chicago Cubs may be numbered. "I've been in this game a long time," he said Monday after the Cubs lost 6-0 to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"There is no manager who is not vulnerable. And when the time comes—today, tomorrow, next week or next year—when it happens, am I going to be a baby about something like that?" Durocher was thrown out of the game Monday in the fifth inning for protesting a third strike call to his pitcher, Ferguson Jenkins.

"That's a lot of bull. If anybody wants to know what's going to happen, have him call Mr. Wrigley (the team owner) or Mr. Holland (team vice president)." The Cubs have now lost 10 of their last 13 games, have been shut out two games straight by the Pirates—Monday by Steve Blass who scattered five hits—and are hurting because of injuries and a weak bullpen which has picked up only one save all strike call. Under league rules, a batter is fined for heaving a helmet or bat but not thrown out of the game. Stargell homered in the third, his fifth, and drove in another run in a two-run fifth with a double. The plight of the Cubs is obvious to other players. "I thought they were going to make a good fight for the pennant race this year," said the Pirates Roberto Clemente. "But the way they look, I don't know. They're hurting."

Bill Sundell fired a 3-hitter in the 616 Club's 4-0 semi-final victory over Pike's. Loser Al Nosen also gave up three safeties. Sundell set down the final 14 hitters to face him.

KAUKAUNA — Bob Ziesemer, Appleton, won the modified eliminator class at Wisconsin International Raceway during the weekend, posting a top speed of 109.09 miles per hour.

Bombers Beaten By Continentals

Vic Flegel scored three goals and led the Waukesha Continentals to a 6-2 victory over the Fox Valley Bombers in a soccer match at Waukesha Sunday.

Waukesha had a 3-1 lead at halftime. Jim Nash had the only goal for the Bombers with Oscar Rodriguez assisting. The other two goals were scored by Jeff Swanson of Waukesha.

Twins Fall, 5-4

Foxes' Bourg Stars in Relief

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor
"Rusty" Bourg turned in one of the Appleton Foxes' outstanding pitching performances of the season here Sunday afternoon.

Bourg (6-1) didn't start against Wisconsin Rapids. . . but he worked almost a complete game. "Rusty" came on in the second inning and treated 662 customers to 3-hit, 10-strikeout, shutout relief pitching for 7 and 2-3 innings.

The effort enabled the rallying Foxes to win 5-4, and square their series with the Twins at 1-1. Appleton scored once in the first inning on Brian Downing's infield hit, a stolen base, a wild pitch and Jerry Hairston's infield chopper. The Twins came back in the 4th run second to chase starter Paul Sands. Bob Gorinski singled in a pair of runs, Randy Beach singled in another, and the fourth one came on a steal and an overthrow by catcher Edito Arteaga.

The Foxes got one run back in the second without benefit of a base hit, then went ahead to stay with three in the third. Ross Sapp was hit by a pitched ball with one out in the third. Downing doubled to center. Hairston smashed a single to right — scoring the tying runs — and took second on the throw.

Lamar Johnson was safe on a fielder's choice, Hairston taking second. Talley dropped a squeeze bunt down the third base line, counting what proved to be the winning run. Bourg held the visitors at bay the rest of the way, making effective use of a change-up to go with a sharp curve and good fast ball.

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves announced Monday they have purchased the contract of former American League Most Valuable Player and all-star shortstop, Zoilo Versalles, from Union Laguna of the Mexican League.

He replaces third baseman Cleto Boyer on the roster. Boyer was placed on waivers last week after a dispute with Braves' General Manager Paul Richards.

Versalles, a 30-year-old veteran of 11 seasons in the major leagues, was the Most Valuable Player and shortstop on the American League All-Star team in 1965 when he helped lead the Minnesota Twins to the world championship.

Bob Charles Equals Record

Shoots Round of 68 in Benefit for Children's Hospital

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The only left-hander to the post, New Zealander Bob Charles walked off with a thoroughbred race horse Monday in a one-day charity tournament loaded with big-name golfers, other athletes and entertainment celebrities.

Charles shot a 68 to tie the course record at the Hurstbourne Country Club and nudge Ohioan Tom Weiskopf by one stroke. At 70 were Lee Trevino, George Archer and Bob Rosburg, with Bob Murphy, Gary Player and four others at 71.

Top celebrity was Archie Campbell of television's Hawkeye, with a 73. Mickey Mantle, Joe Louis, Johnny Unitas and other celebrities played in foursomes with the pro golfers and amateurs who pitched in $2,000 apiece to rub elbows with the big names.

Proceeds from the tourney, which drew 12,000 playing patrons, will go to the Kosair Crippled Children's Hospital.

American Racer Killed in England

MALLORY PARK, England (AP) — Leigh Gados, 20-year-old American auto driver, was killed Monday while competing in a Formula Ford race at Mallory Park.

12-2 on Home Stand

Brock's Streak Ends, But Cards Win Again

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Atlanta's well," said Brock in respect to George Stone stopped Lou Brock's hitting streak Monday on strikes twice and on ground balls twice.

"All I can say is the streak was fun while it lasted," added Stone, who halted Brock's streak at 26 games, was unable to get past Jose Cardenal, in the eighth inning.

Cardenal slapped a delivery off the Atlanta left-hander into shallow center field for a single, that brought home Joe Torre to raise a Cardinals winning streak to seven games.

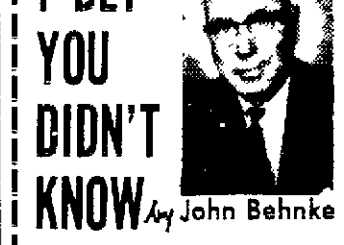

"I just knew I had to stay after him," said Cardenal, who had been retired three times previously by Stone. "He got Brock, which made me feel bad, but I knew we had other fellows on the team to pick up. I think all the time I can hit him, and I'm just happy to win the game."

Cardenal's hit, his seventh game-winning blow of the season, finished out the Cardinals' month of May at 19-6, the hottest pace in the National League.

It also gave the Cardinals a 12-2 record for a spectacular home stand and a 2½-game lead in the NL East heading into a series opening tonight at Pittsburgh.

"I never have followed him," Brock said. "I never have followed him."

SPORT FANS! I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Here's a strange twist... There've been big league baseball players who led the league in batting various years with averages like .309, .306, and even as low as .301 — but, oddly enough, there was once a player named Shoeless Joe Jackson who had seasons when he hit .408, .395, .387 and .382 and yet he never led the league! . . . In each of those years that Jackson had a high average, someone like Ty Cobb or Tris Speaker would come along and hit just a bit higher that year.

Who would you say have been the greatest radio and TV sportscasters over the years? . . . Well, a panel of sports people has voted, and you may not agree with the selections, but they make for interesting discussion. . . . They voted as best football announcer of all-time, Ted Husing; best baseball announcer, Vin Scully; best general sports show, Bill Stern; best current TV sportscaster, Curt Gowdy; and best color man, Paul Christman.

Here's a fact that shows you can't always judge a player by what he does in the minors. . . . Cincinnati pitcher Wayne Simpson had a losing record in the minors in 1969, winning only 7 games while dropping 13 — but in the big leagues in 1970, Simpson won 14 and lost 3, and led the National League in winning percentage!

scattering eight hits and besting Mickey Lolich 8-4. Washington used three pitchers—Mike Thompson, Denny Riddleberger and Casey Cox—to three-hit California. Thompson worked the first three innings before rejoining a dislocated finger. Then Riddleberger took over until the ninth with Cox finished up. Larry Bittner had three hits and Bernie Allen contributed a homer to Washington's attack. Johnny Ellis rocked a three-run homer to break a tie and move New York past Oakland in the first game of their doubleheader. Fritz Peterson earned the victory and Jim 'Catfish' Hunter was tagged with the loss, ending an eight-game winning streak. In the nightcap, John 'Blue Moon' Odum earned his first victory of the season with Oakland cracking a tie on successive run-scoring singles by Tommy Davis who had five hits for the doubleheader, Sal Bando and Angel Mangual.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Jack Nicklaus fired a 36-36—72 and Donna Caponi a 34-39—73 to set men's and women's National Golf Day standards Monday over Watson Country Clubs sprawling course. The scores become targets for amateurs across the nation in competition for charity extending through June 14. Those beating the tallies with the aid of handicaps receive key rings. The blond Nicklaus, appearing rusty from a recent tour lay-off, went one over par on the 7,200-yard course on the front nine but matched par coming in beating Englishman Tony Jacklin's 33-41—74.

Miss Caponi, who was matched against Ladies PGA Champion Shirley Englehorn in what is the only all-female golf event in the world, shot a 34-39—73. Nicklaus entered the Golf Day competition as reigning PGA champion and Jacklin as winner of the 1970 National Open. Miss Caponi won last year's Women's Open.

3-Stroke Edge. In blistering par going out Jacklin finished the front nine with a three-stroke advantage over Nicklaus only to fall victim to erratic driving. Nicklaus fell four strokes back by missing a 14-inch putt at No. 10 but made up five shots to go ahead on the next two holes on a birdie and a par as Jacklin took back-to-back double boges. A crowd of about 3,000 watched the matches, which were conducted at the site of next September's Ryder Cup competition between the United States and Great Britain.

Miss Caponi and Miss Englehorn, playing from shortened runnerup in Saturday's Indian tees, finished the competition 2:01:39, an average speed of 74.83 m.p.h. while being clocked in 2:01:52.

Peter Gregg of Jacksonville, Fla., also driving a 1970 Mustang, was second averaging 74.83 m.p.h. while being clocked in 2:01:52.

George Follmer of Arcadia, Calif., is the champion of the Byar 200 Trans-American auto race for the second year in a row. Follmer driving a 1970 Mustang, repeated as champion Sunday by averaging 75.32 m.p.h. per hour, circling the 1.61 mile course in 2 hours, 1 minute 04.1 seconds.

Peter Gregg of Jacksonville, Fla., also driving a 1970 Mustang, was second averaging 74.83 m.p.h. while being clocked in 2:01:52.

Arthur Ashe of Gum Springs, Va. and Frank Froehling of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., won their fourth round matches Monday. Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif. was tied 4-4 in the first set with Patrice Dominguez of France when rain interrupted their match on the red clay center court at Roland Garros Stadium. The finish of the Smith-Dominguez match was set for today on the center court at the same time Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., meets Ivan Guliyas of Hungary on a side court. Smith is seeded No. 6 and Richey No. 4. Bob Lutz of Los Angeles seeded No. 9, goes against Patrick Proisy of France on the Center court. Linda Tuero of Melrose, La. one of the surprises of the tournament, meets Marijke Schaaf of Holland, an ambidextrous player in a quarter-final match.

Shaffer Hurls Foxes to Win

curve ball over what appeared to be the heart of the plate just below the letters. However, the plate umpire saw differently so the count moved to 2-2 while the Appleton fans howled. Shaffer then wheeled another curve that appeared to catch the plate perfectly, but again it was called a ball... and by this time the fans were fully incensed.

Shaffer grooved the next one into the strike zone and the 30-year-old Bowlin, displaying the experience he has behind him, smacked it to right field and into the corner. Before Gary Isakson could retrieve the ball, Bowlin was on second and all three runners were across the plate.

While Bowlin did his damage with the bat, Barnes had complete control of the Foxes from the mound. The 18-year-old lefty used a sharp curve with a good change of pace to keep Foxes' base runners at a minimum.

The Twins grabbed the lead in the second inning by scoring one run when Ken Knight and Al Barrett singled. Renn Lyzak followed with another hit to left but Knight was cut down at the plate on a beautiful throw by Larry Linville of the Foxes.

Gary Wolfe then drove in Barrett with a bouncer up the middle. Barnes singled to shallow left to load the bases for the Twins, but Shaffer got out of the inning when Bob Gorinski struck out and Randy Beach fled to left.

Appleton tied the game in the third, when Isakson doubled on a hard shot through the third baseman and down the left field line. After an error on the second baseman, Isakson advanced to third and crossed the plate on a wild pitch that Barnes uncorked back to the screen.

That was it for the Foxes as Barnes allowed only five base runners the rest of the way. Isakson had a scratch single in the seventh, Fred Norton also had a hit and Brian Downing singled to right in the eighth.

Shaffer, who now has a 2-2 pitching record for the season, was nicked for 10 hits by the Twins in the first seven innings. Rich DeMay finished up and did not allow a hit over the last two frames while striking out three.

Shaffer hurled well, except for the second inning when the Twins had five hits and the seventh when they bunched four. The only other safety came in the fourth on a harmless lead-off single by Barrett.

Danville Wins, 16-1 No-Hitter for Travers

DANVILLE, ILL. (AP) — Left-hander Bill Travers hurled a no-hitter Sunday to lead Danville to a 16 to 1 romp past Quad Cities in a Midwest League baseball game.

Danville, which leads the league's Southern Division with a 24-8 mark, gave the 18-year-old hurler a big lead with a 7-run first inning.

Travers, property of the Milwaukee Brewers, struck out 8 and walked two. He had a perfect game for the first 5 and 2-3 innings.

It was Danville's 12th straight home win and 17th victory out of 18 home games. Travers is now 3 and 2. He had a one-hitter earlier in the year.

Luis O-for-44

BOSTON (AP) — Little Luis top on the field. Maybe I should try that." Aparicio, the Boston Red Sox' veteran shortstop acquired last winter, is gripped in the worst slump of his 16-year major league career, and doesn't know what to do about it.

"I don't know how much more I can take," Aparicio said Monday after he went 0-for-4 and extending his hitless streak to 44 times at bat since May 19.

"I've done virtually everything possible to break out of this, but nothing seems to work," he said. "About the only thing I haven't done is blow my

Tries to Name Son For Canonero II but Settles for Jockey

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP) — The name Canonero II is all right for a horse, but not for a child.

Cruz Paredes, a farmer, tried to name his baby boy after the Venezuelan-owned winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness. But a Merida state clerk rejected his request, saying the name wasn't fit for a child.

Paredes then changed his son's name to Gustavo Franklin Paredes, after Gustavo Avila, the jockey who rode Canonero II.

Police & Fire Beat

NEW LONDON — Three persons sustained injuries in a two-car accident at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the intersection of Beacon Avenue and Wyman Street.

The accident occurred when an auto driven by David C. Bergles, Pewaukee, failed to stop for the arterial and crossed in the path of a southbound auto driven by Ladia Redmann, 1614 Division St., New London.

Mrs. Redmann complained of sore legs and was taken to New London Community Hospital. Bergles and a passenger in his auto, Jane Bergles, sustained minor cuts.

The right front fender, hood, grill and radiator of the Redmann auto and the right front fender, right door, and rear fender of the Bergles auto were damaged in the collision.

KAUKAUNA — Firemen used a smoke ejector to clear smoke from the Kaukauna Times Printing office when an electric motor burned out causing the building to fill with smoke about 11:30 a.m. Friday.

Fire fighters went to the home of Robert Ness, 531 E. McKinley St., about 7 a.m. today when discarded hot ashes from a charcoal grill scorched the side of his garage.

Fire did extensive damage early today to the interior of a 1961 automobile owned by David Conrad, 1524 N. Rankin St. The fire started in the rear seat of the auto which was parked in the front of Conrad's home, officials said.

We Are Obsessed!

Secretary of State William Rogers, generally considered a most reasonable man and sort of a mediator for the Nixon Administration both without and within that Administration, has recently complained that Americans seem to be "obsessed" with the Indochina war.

Mr. Rogers, recently returned from a tour in the Middle East, hasn't found that attitude in England, he reports. The British are more concerned about the tinder keg in the Middle East and hardly asked a question about American intentions in Vietnam, Cambodia or Laos. Why should they? The British have not lost almost 50,000 dead in Indochina nor do they have the problem of trying to get out of the war without losing face or watching the Communists take over.

Yes, Mr. Rogers, Americans are obsessed with the war in Indochina. More and more they are coming to realize that there has been no sense to our massive participation in that conflict from the beginning. President Nixon has apparently believed that the American public would tolerate a scaling down of the war, a big reduction in American casualties, an end to the search and destroy missions; even with a considerable increase in the air war. Mr. Rogers said he had surprised many people by pointing out that in one week only six Americans were killed in Vietnam. We must wonder whether any of his audience included relatives of those six.

The anti-war protests in Washington in April and May were pretty sure indications that opposition to the war has spread from college campuses to businessmen, housewives, and, perhaps most indicative of all, to the men who have fought the war in Indochina. Moreover a lot of Americans are realizing that our continued heavy air support of the South Vietnamese may not be exactly a compassionate move either. True, fewer Americans are dying and more are coming home every day. But our pulling the strings as to the war will insure that a lot of Asians will continue to die on both sides. There seems to be no bad consciences on this matter in Washington; there are among many other Americans.

Secretary Rogers is quite right — we are obsessed with the war in Indochina. Hopefully we will continue to be until it is all over.

Christmas Cards in May?

You may not have been one of the recipients, but according to a story in the newspapers at least one man beat the postal rate hike by sending out his 1971 Christmas cards just prior to the increase in mailing costs.

Such action undoubtedly produced some interesting re-actions. One wonders at the initial feelings of the people who received their "Merry Christmas" message in mid-May. The postal authorities probably did not mind at all. That's one batch of cards they'll not need to worry about when the rush comes again next December 21st or so. Very possibly the man was trying to register his protest at the increase in postal rates, and we have to admit what he did certainly attracted considerable publicity.

While postal rates go up, gasoline prices in this area (as of this writing, at least) keep dropping, much to the delight of multitudes of motorists, but also to the dismay of highly competitive filling station operators. When the price war will stop nobody knows, but you can be sure that meanwhile more gas tanks are being kept filled to near capacity as drivers keep trying to take advantage of the lower prices while they last.

They won't last, of course, not indefinitely. But while the gasoline companies and station operators are still in the "dropping" spirit, we wish most fervently that they would once and for all get rid of that silly decimal point which has been hung onto the end of gasoline price figures for lo these many years.

It's not likely, of course, that a seller will drop an additional nine-tenths of one per cent which he's dropping, but we're just about ready to suggest that when the price war ends, and gallon costs go back to their "pre-war" (no higher, we hope) level, the sellers charge a plain and simple 36 cents instead of 35.9, or 37 instead of 36.9, or whatever. Even if we drivers have to pay that difference!

The Pill Popping Culture

Some of those concerned over the extent of drug and alcohol abuse in the nation have blamed the "pill popping" American culture, particularly demonstrated through television advertisements which sometime seem to encourage the taking of a variety of capsules and potions to ease our sorrows and troubles. This is not the whole story. But testimony by spokesmen of the American Pharmaceutical Association before the United States Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee last week tended to say much the same thing.

James Beckett charged that there is "deliberate misrepresentation" in drug advertising that often consumes more than one-third of total drug revenues, according to Federal Trade Commission figures. Mr. Beckett also endorsed tighter restrictions on over-the-counter sales of drugs. "We feel that over-the-counter drug advertising is out of control and has become a major public health problem," he said.

Charles Daul of Wisconsin, also an official of the APA and a former member of the Board of Regents of Wisconsin State Universities, agreed. He cited the consumption of cough medicine as an example of misuse of a drug and its availability on grocery shelves as well as drugstores. The representative of the APA suggested a new classification for medicines which could be dispensed only by registered pharmacists, even though without a doctor's prescription. Other items listed as being misused or misrepresented included aspirins, sleeping tablets, antacids, cold remedies, vitamins and iron compounds.

Many young users of various illegal drugs have excused their habits on the grounds that their parents take legal pills or alcohol for the same reasons — to induce euphoria, an end to tension, an easing of the results of stress. They are treating symptoms, not causes, the argument runs, and it can be pretty well documented in many cases. It is not enough to rationalize the use of other drugs of course; a drunkard's son should not necessarily become a drunkard himself.

But as Mr. Daul pointed out, the victims of misleading or suggestive advertising — the mother who beams at her noisy children instead of spanking them, the husband who is no longer kept awake by business problems, the wife who is slim and beautiful and energetic in spite of a runny nose, a PTA meeting, scrubbing the living room carpet and entertaining the office staff — are often those "who can't read well or who are poorly educated." Moreover, the burden of proving the drugs effective or not is upon the government, according to the director of the FTC Bureau of Consumer Protection. This almost puts some drugs in the category of the old time quack medicines.

It does seem likely that a considerable amount of the drug advertising is ignored by the American public. But if psychological addiction is being increased by some easily obtainable drugs, then more restrictive regulations should be considered.

Saloonkeeper Harbeck Angry

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Post for May 25, 1871.

Mr. H. Harbeck takes umbrage at our report of a little unpleasantness that recently occurred at his saloon.

It is not our intention to get into a dispute on the subject, we only "rise to explain."

In the Crescent, Mr. H. satisfies himself by saying we intended to make people believe that he kept a disorderly house, which he claimed was false.

But he informs the editors of the Volksfreund that we made certain statements concerning his house as a means of revenge on him because he stopped taking the Post.

Mr. H. has made the case worse for himself. His name has never appeared on any of our books nor has he ever been asked by any member of this firm for a cent's worth of patronage. We cannot conceive why he ever endeavored to make this impression unless it was with the hope that it would never reach our ears, and that we, therefore, would have no opportunity of refuting it.

This is a poor way to secure popular favor.

Further on he says we intended to cast some reflections on our German citizens. Nothing could have been more foreign to our mind than such a motive. We have repeatedly stated in the columns of this journal that we speak of men and their actions, regardless of race, color or nationality. Teuton, Celt and Saxon have equal weight with us when we criticize as well as when we speak approvingly.

So far as the fracas itself

Nixon's Patience With Russia Is Causing Buckley Anxiety

By William F. Buckley, Jr.

It is hard to describe the reaction to the dramatic announcement of Mr. Nixon with respect to the SALT talks. The reason why is that what the President said is not easy to understand. Indeed an understanding of the technical complexity of the SALT negotiations is, quite simply, beyond the layman's powers, and for that matter beyond the powers even of some scientists. That's the kind of thing that happens when variables and coefficients of variables come into play. It is unlikely that you can find even a skilled layman who can give you immediately the answer, say, to such a question as: what if the United States offered to limit the ABM was concerned, we reaffirm what we before stated. We were on the street at the time it occurred and have since been told by no less than a dozen persons that our report was substantially true.

Appleton high school boys bound for Badger Boys State in Ripon the next month included James Wilch, Thomas Sheehy, Jack Young, Thomas Mann, Merlin Schultz, William Sach, Eugene Alesch, Donald Utschig, James La Fond and Harry Olson.

Bowling champs in the Friday Night Ladies League at Kaukauna were the Mat-chetts quintet composed of Lillian Vils, Gertrude Swedesky, Mabel Lemke, Germaine DeBruin and Capt. Jeanne Nytes.

Lucille Klarner was elected May Queen for the semi-annual formal dance sponsored by the Black Creek Youth Center. The dance was to be held at Community Hall the coming Friday night.

10 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, May 30, 1961.

El-Mates, an organization of wives whose husbands teach elementary school in Appleton, held its family picnic in Pierce Park with Mrs. William Schein, incoming president, in charge of arrangements. Assisting her were members Mrs. Richard Haas, Mrs. Charles Lynch, Mrs. Donald Vosseteig, Mr. Rolland Nock and Mrs. Jack Kolterjohn.

Xavier coeds honored at an awards assembly included Mary Kay Gorski, high scorer in national Latin test; Patricia Wuersch, high scorer in state mathematics test; winners in regional poetry contest, Linda Kranhold, Mary Simon, Connie Griesbach.

Movie and television star Dennis Morgan was elected president of the Carroll College Alumni Association for a two-year term beginning July 1. A 1930 graduate of the College, Morgan was born in Prentice, Wis. His wife, the former Lillian Vedder, also was a Carroll graduate.

defenses around its MIRV-equipped Minutemen? Even if such a proposal were made at Vienna, Russian negotiators would go back to their hotel and think about it. As much time is given to very special chess moves. This is a very special chess game.

A few observations: 1) It has been the assumption of American Conservatives that as long as Richard Nixon is President, American security is something we do not need to worry about. Granted the details are complicated, and beyond the reach of the common understanding; still — Richard Nixon will simply not let us down. Why? Because Mr. Nixon, whatever you say about him as a practical politician, is undeniably a patriot. And a patriot simply would not preside over the liquidation of America's nuclear deterrent, America's nuclear deterrent being generally understood as something in the absence of which America is — nothing.

It's Strange Silence

2) President Nixon's strange silence, during his presidency, on the general subject of strategic deterrents suggests (to his friends) one of two things. Either that he has an ace up his sleeve — a new weapon, or a concept of a new weapon which could be put on the drawing boards and got into action in plenty of time before the Soviet Union becomes too imperious. A second possibility is that Mr. Nixon is enjoying the waters of Vienna because he figures that the Soviet Union has got to come forward with disarmament proposals that are agreeable to us because the economic strain of its armament effort is simply intolerable.

3) Although one cannot rule out either of the two points as underlying the public non-chalance of the Administration, still there is anxiety. And that anxiety, at this moment latent, is likely to be aroused in the weeks and months ahead. It is to deal lightly with it to suggest that that anxiety could determine such questions as Mr. Nixon's reelection. That anxiety festers because,

4) It is increasingly apparent to the American body politic that the conjunction of the great political moral and philosophical pressures of the past half dozen years comes down on the White House in such a way as to encourage the superstition of detente. We are nowadays behaving vis-a-vis our brothers on the other side of the Iron Curtain as if they were altogether amiable political adversaries. I doubt, to give a silly example, whether a reform Democrat in New York City could be persuaded to utter words against the Kremlin that could compare in sharpness with the routine denunciations of, say, Mayor Daley of Chicago.

He's Fiddling Around

Now the significance of this datum is that Mr. Nixon, as a political centrist, is inevitably influenced by the intellectual's emphasis upon negotiation, disarmament, detente, the disdain of nuclear superiority and of defensive missiles. He has gone further than a Richard Nixon unburdened by such pressures would have gone — sitting around, waiting for evidence of the Soviet Union's bona fides, fiddling, to use the phrase, while Rome burns. Another way of putting it is: the preternatural patience Mr. Nixon has shown in his dealings with the Soviet negotiators is inconceivable in the absence of the national disposition to: do anything, except face the facts of life. The facts of life are that Mr. Nixon is sitting in the White House while the Soviet Union is accumulating a first strike capability.

If he has an ace up his sleeve, the time to show it is soon. If it isn't there, he will lose re-election, which is a minor consideration up against what he, his children, his children's children stand to lose.

Potomac Fever —

The Army relaxed its rules on long hair, but you have to wear olive drab curlers.

Nixon wants to turn lower New York harbor into a national park. It'll also be good as a swordfish sanctuary.

A poll shows Muskie widening his lead on Nixon in popularity, which means the Democrats are bound to nominate somebody else.

Now Ralph Nader is taking on the airlines, and in the executive suites they're offering coffee, tea or hemlock.

We've proposed that prisoners of war of both sides be interned in a neutral country, if we can find one we're not bombing.

Wisconsin Report

Quick Now, What Is Name of Our New Wisconsin Treasurer?

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The wanderer in state Capitol corridors on a typical day is likely to encounter among others who occupy principal suites there a friendly and vaguely familiar young man who unfailingly greets all passersby with that most solid of the common convictions of the elected officeholder — there is always another election coming up.

This is Charles Philip Smith, the young Madison factory supervisor who exploited popular association of his name with an office last fall to upset an unwary Republican incumbent and became state treasurer with a modest but nevertheless decisive margin of votes in a season when the electorate was thinking Democratic.

Mr. Smith is not mentioned often in the news dispatches. There is very little occasion for mention. Functions and duties of the state treasurer, after years of trimming of staff and responsibilities by legislative act, are not pressing, to put it gently.

Budget, Staff Small

Almost everybody in the state government today with any rank has the services of a publicity man. But Mr. Smith does not. Indeed, his staff is so modest and his payroll so tiny that most persons are surprised when they examine them in the context of his sonorous title and generally supposed vast powers and exacting tasks.

Treasurer Smith chatted with a reporter the other day about his new place in life and his new rank in the politics of his state. He allowed that he is quite content.

He has the office operating to his satisfaction, he went on, and has encountered no especially challenging problems. He is spending a good deal of his time traveling in the state.

One of Mr. Smith's predecessors had a possibly more descriptive phrase. The

Provides Opportunities

The state treasurer has very little to do that cannot wait, or cannot be done by one of his small staff of assistants. Thus it should have been for the last quarter of a century or more a kind of dream assignment for the aspiring young politician, providing as it does almost unlimited opportunities for political fence building without even a slight chance of embarrassment through challenges of neglect of work duty.

Curiously, however, ambitious young men have not sought out the office for such career building. Mostly they have been content to have it for its own sake, unlike treasurers in other states including some bordering Wisconsin. Memory recalls only one man who held the office during the last four decades who aspired even mildly for higher place. He was quickly turned back.

Charles Smith will become a familiar face in the smaller towns during the next three years before the people vote on his office again. Some of his travel is now upon his own initiative. Some engagements are routed to him because the meetings and the localities are too small to be crowded into the calendars of more prominent persons — such as Gov. Lucey.

He Is Available

If the club at New Glarus wants a Democrat to balance the Republican-oriented program at the last minute or if the Chamber of Commerce at Pembine wants an exposition of budget policies at Madison, or the Democratic party unit at Adams needs a program for its next monthly meeting, somebody will suggest that the state treasurer is available and is an amiable man who has a good rapport with the Lucey regime.

Mr. Smith may sometimes be annoyed when the post office confounds him with one of the numerous other Charles Smiths in Madison. But there are compensations. The history of the last three decades and more shows that the Wisconsin voter finds a peculiar propriety in having a Smith in the state treasury. It is a comforting thought, as he doubtless reminds his wife.

Strictly Personal

Relevant Most Used And Abused Word

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Although the word "relevant" has become among the most used, and abused, of slogans today — especially in education — it remains a fact that there is no satisfactory definition of the word.

"Relevant," the dictionaries tell us, is an adjective that means "bearing upon or connected with the matter in hand; to the purpose; pertinent." Some of its synonyms are "applicable," "germane," "apposite," "appropriate," "suitable," and "fitting."

But "relevant" has no object of its own. Relevant to what? In modern jargon, education would be relevant to "what's happening now." It should be keyed in to current events, should be helping people solve problems.

But the basic problem of mankind has always been, and remains, twofold: how to think clearly, and how to establish the best relationship between our thoughts and our feelings. If we think poorly, our good feelings will be subverted by ignorance and muddled logic; and if we are dominated by our feelings, then our intellects will be controlled by our appetites, and we will use our knowledge for selfish purposes.

The students and activists are confused about "proximate" ends and "ultimate" ends. The ultimate end of education — like that of all institutions — is to make a more liveable, civilized and humane world for all of us.

But the proximate end — the immediate function of education — is to turn out men and women who have learned how to use their minds, who have been given access to the best minds of the past, and who are disciplined in their thoughts and feelings.

You cannot create a better world if you are ignorant; with all the good will in the world, all you can do is replace current evils with different ones. You cannot work for "justice," "peace," "brotherhood," or any such abstraction, until you understand their philosophical roots, their implications and their perversions.

The trouble with the schools is that they have dealt with these questions inadequately and have not applied them to our society; this much is true when they are criticized for being "irrelevant." But the way to change this is not to concentrate on the immediate problems but to construct a solid bridge of knowledge leading from the theoretical to the practical, from the useable past to the present and future.

Shakespeare's "Troilus and Cressida" can tell us more about the nature of war and the erotic impulse than anything in the headlines about Vietnam. "Relevance" means going back as much as going forward.

Drug Scene Always Changing

(First in a Series)
BY ALTON BLAKESLEE
 Associated Press Science Editor

It came along like an explosion — this spreading use and abuse of drugs that affect the human mind.

Suddenly, a few years ago, there rose a seeming popular rage among young people to smoke marijuana or "pot," to take "trips" with LSD, to shoot "speed" and heroin, to go on mental voyages with drugs named mescaline and peyote, and to "pop" pep pills, or to take "downers."

Puzzled parents, some frightened also, became confronted with a totally strange "drug scene."

A few reacted hysterically; others sought to understand the appeal of mind-influencing drugs and to combat its dangers.

The drug scene continues, and continues to change. Use of marijuana is still increasing. Attitudes toward it are changing, as indicated by a trend to reduce legal penalties for using it.

But — ominously — use of heroin, which can be really bad news, is increasing, including among high school and even some grammar school students.

Each year hundreds of American teen-agers are dying from overdoses of heroin.

Heroin has moved to the suburbs. And the drug culture has spread to rural areas.

Involves Millions

The real drug scene involves millions of Americans, not just youths taking hallucinogenic drugs, but also adults who are abusing alcohol and tobacco and sleeping and pep-pills and tranquilizers to get through their day.

The line of difference between abuse of one chemical or another can be very thin indeed.

It involves thousands of young people who are in or recently out of jail for having possessed or perhaps having pushed drugs, mainly marijuana, which they may have rightly or wrongly considered to be safe and acceptable.

Arizona Issues Service Station Racket Alert

Attorney General Reports Tires Cut, Engines Sabotaged

By LEE GOULD
 Associated Press Writer

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Radio messages written by the attorney general's office are warning motorists about unscrupulous service station practices.

They are being followed up by the attorney general with prosecutions that have resulted in civil suits charging stations with such practices as slashing tires and spraying oil and metal filings on engine parts. The idea is to sell unneeded tires, batteries and parts such as shock absorbers.

State officials believe the practice is common throughout the nation "especially along the interstate highways." Asst. Atty. Gen. Jack McCormick said in an interview. But he said it seems to be especially widespread in Arizona.

The "threat of the desert, the fear of being stranded in isolated areas" is a factor, McCormick said. "A motorist can check his tires in the morning, but after driving 200 miles across the desert, he's willing to believe something could have happened to them."

State Step In He said the state stepped in when repeated warnings were "completely ignored" by station operators. Teams of officials days.

Dealers in Flagstaff, Yuma and Phoenix have been cited to date. McCormick said more charges are planned, and some may come from closed door hearings today. Sixteen dealers were subpoenaed by the Consumer Fraud Division.

Unhappy dealers have formed the Northern Arizona Petroleum Dealers Association and say they will police themselves, but the frequently broadcast radio messages are having their effect.

Face Distrust "You haven't seen the look on people's faces—the distrust," one operator told McCormick. "They won't even let you lift the hood. We're barely able to wash their windshields."

William Garbarino, a Flagstaff service station operator and organizer of the dealers' association, said it would not take a position on what happened before its formation but he believes that when the investigation is complete the total of dealers involved will be six or eight.

"We have about 100 service stations in Flagstaff and about 85 of them are members of the association," he said.

Auto Design Hearing

Safety Group Opposes Forcing Car Standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The quately protect passengers head of the National Highway Safety Administration says his agency should not try to dictate to manufacturers how their vehicles are designed, planned or constructed.

Douglas W. Toms, the agency's acting administrator, said, instead, the federal government should set standards and allow the industry to meet them.

"We feel we should not set property-damage standards," he testified Friday before the Senate Commerce Committee which is probing the ability of automobiles to withstand age, and aggressiveness of design.

Public Interest Toms said this would not be in the public interest, would deny consumers freedom of choice in the auto market and would dilute "our priority safety mission" with involvement in design features.

Toms said the agency's six-week-old bumper-performance standard, which would offer about half as much damage protection as a proposal by Ford Motor Co. is being re-evaluated.

Ford's proposal would require on 1974 cars rear bumpers that would shield such safety-related components as fuel lines and taillights from damage from a 5-mile-an-hour impact. The speed set by the agency is 2.81 m.p.h.

Still Injury? But Toms said a car that sustains damage in a 5 m.p.h. impact may not necessarily adequate to protect passengers from injury. Toms said the Department of Transportation opposes a bill by Sens. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., and Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., designed to reduce insurance rates by cutting losses from auto accidents and thefts.

DOT is preparing, he said, alternative legislation aimed at expanding consumer information on vehicle crashworthiness which is probing the ability of automobiles to withstand age, and aggressiveness of design.

Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., contended cars can be designed to be both safe and damage-resistant.

Not Everyone "I'm not so sure we ought to say every person in America ought to have that kind of bumper if they don't want it," Toms said, indicating costs would be high.

Hartke said he thinks the White House is "pussyfooting" on an automobile safety bill.

But Toms said he has no knowledge of any administration delay in sending legislation to Congress or lack of concern.

"I think it is deplorable," Hartke said. "I think it is an unsatisfactory performance in view of the slaughter that's going on on the highways ... almost all I think it shows a lack of real concern."

Beauty Council Credit Bureau Abuse Pushes Bill on Junked Cars

Measure Proposes Counties Set Up Disposal Methods

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The major legislative campaign of the fledgling Wisconsin Natural Beauty Council, a statutory state agency, will be for the enactment of its bill to provide an orderly method for the disposal of old cars on the improvement of the rural and urban landscape.

The measure developed after extensive study was modeled upon a pioneering law enacted by the state of Vermont.

The basic machinery would be, the county, which would be required to set up collection points to accept junk or abandoned cars.

The state would impose a one-time fee of one dollar upon automobile owners as a part of the vehicle registration process, to build up a reserve fund to guarantee that junked cars will be recycled even during those periods of low scrap prices when the commercial market for junk cars may not be sufficient to cover the costs of collections.

Public Nuisance

The law would define junk cars and require their removal from public view as a public nuisance, but it would provide protection for those owners who wish to retain an older vehicle so long as it does not become a public nuisance, the council explains.

The council's bill results from several years of study and deliberation.

The organization says that the problem of junked cars was presented to it soon after its creation, but that members quickly realized it was extremely complex and therefore decided to proceed cautiously.

The major investigative work was performed by Prof. Duncan Harkin, of the agricultural economics staff of the University of Wisconsin, who surveyed the laws and programs of other states.

The Harkin report concluded that the Vermont law providing for public collection points and some legal compulsion was "the best method available."

Charles F. Smith Jr. of Wausau is chairman of the council, which has developed county and other local associate organizations throughout Wisconsin.

Credit Bureau Abuse Bill Draws Opposition

MADISON, Wis., (AP) — The 1970 Federal Fair Credit Reporting Act, which went into effect in April, is sufficient to protect Wisconsin consumers from credit bureau abuse, the Madison attorney Robert Kay, Assembly's Commerce and Consumer Affairs Committee said Thursday.

The panel heard testimony on a Democratic-sponsored bill that would establish procedures for the collection and dissemination of banking information by credit bureaus, institutional delegation of authority, and that only the legislature could make laws regulating credit bureaus.

The bill was opposed by the Associated Credit Bureaus of Wisconsin, the first Wisconsin Bankshares Corp. of Milwaukee, the Wisconsin Bankers Association, and the Wisconsin Savings and Loan Association.

The bill's critics said it was at odds with the new federal legislation and in some cases didn't go far enough in protecting the public. Milwaukee attorney William Dixon, representing First Wisconsin, said a month was not enough time to determine if the new U.S. laws were working.

He noted the federal legislation allowed consumers to bring criminal action and civil damages.

Youth Develops Highly Sophisticated Timer

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A highly sophisticated device which can time intervals to one 100,000th of a second has been developed by a 16-year-old school student.

Lorentz Preysz, 16, a junior at Madison East worked about four hours a day during the week, and most of the week-ends for a year to develop a hand-built model of the timer.

Preysz first laid out his circuits on paper, and then tested the components to make sure of that.

They worked He later exposed silver coated panels, etched away unwanted silver with acid and bored some 700 minute holes to within about a 1,000th of an inch of where they ought to be.

2 Channels The prototype model has two channels, both of which can be started or stopped manually or electronically. And it can be used in laboratories, factory machines or at sporting events.

The idea for the device, in fact, first came to Preysz when he was skiing on Mt. Telemark and watched a similar timer working.

"The only limits are the limits of your imagination," he said.

Police Authority in Loitering Cases Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today cut into the power of police to clear the streets of "annoying" groups of people.

In a 5 to 3 decision invalidating a Cincinnati ordinance, the court held loitering laws must be specific to be constitutional.

The Cincinnati ordinance disapproved by a five-man majority headed by Justice Potter Stewart had made it a crime for three or more people to assemble on city sidewalks "and there conduct themselves in a manner annoying to persons passing by."

Stewart said the ordinance was invalid for two reasons.

First, he said, it is vague in that "no standard of conduct is specified at all." That is, he said, each individual officer, judge and juror is free to express his own sensitivities in deciding whether a particular group was "criminally annoying."

Free Assembly

Second, Stewart said, the ordinance violates the constitutional right of free assembly and association. "Our decisions establish that mere public intolerance and animosity cannot be the basis for abridgment of these constitutional freedoms," he said.

The justice added: "The First and 14th Amendments do not permit a state to make criminal the exercise of the right of assembly simply because its exercise may be 'annoying' to some people. If this were not the rule, the right of the people to gather in public places for social or political purposes would be continually subject to summary suspension through the good-faith enforcement of a prohibition against annoying conduct."

Unusual Majority

The ruling was produced by an unusual majority. Three liberals, William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall, were joined by two conservatives, John M. Harlan and Stewart. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Harry A. Blackmun joined in a dissenting opinion by Justice Byron R. White, a former deputy U.S. attorney general. Justice Hugo L. Black filed a separate opinion.

The decision has national implications in that it puts shaky ground under loitering ordinances that are written in general terms. The Cincinnati case was brought to the court by an antiwar protester and for labor will annoy others... it would, pickets who were arrested on be frivolous to say that these separate occasions in the Ohio and many other kinds of conduct, such as assault or 1967, outside draft headquarters blocking passage on the street, in Cincinnati.

Justice White said, "any man able reach of the law." of average comprehension. The antiwar protester, Dennis should know that some kinds of Coats, was arrested Dec. 7, conduct, such as assault or 1967, outside draft headquarters blocking passage on the street, in Cincinnati.

Hero Audie Murphy Dies in Crash

By BILL BASKERVILL
Associated Press Writer

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — The wreckage of a chartered airplane carrying World War II hero Audie Murphy and five other men has been found on a rugged mountaintop near here.

Pathologists worked today trying to positively identify the bodies removed from the wreckage Monday by rescue workers and taken to Roanoke Community Hospital.

Spokesmen at the state medical examiner's office here said

it probably would be late afternoon—possibly Wednesday—before positive identifications could be established.

The rescue workers said three bodies might be identified by physical features, but the other three were burned so badly they were unrecognizable.

"All indications point to the fact that it is Audie," said Lincoln Carle, the 46-year-old Murphy's business manager. "We don't have positive identification but everything else matches."

Besides the Medal of Honor he won the Distinguished Service

Cross, the Legion of Merit, the Silver Star with Oak Leaf cluster, the Bronze Star and the Croix de Guerre. He also received the Purple Heart with two Oak Leaf clusters.

Murphy, who rose to lieutenant, also was commended for having killed 240 German soldiers.

Murphy had been flying to Martinsville 60 miles south of here on business. The plane went down Friday morning but the crash went undetected three days because of bad weather and because no flight plan had been filed.

Cost of F14 Up $1 Million

Navy May Reduce Plane Purchases

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top defense official has taken a step that could lead to a cutback in the Navy's purchase of a new fighter plane whose price reportedly has risen by about $1 million apiece.

The Pentagon said Deputy Secretary of Defense David Packard has asked Secretary of the Navy John Chafee "to re-examine the development and production plans for the F14 aircraft."

Chafee expects to complete this re-examination in the next few weeks and, at that time, Packard "will determine what changes, if any, are appropriate in the F14 program," the Defense Department said.

In effect, the Pentagon leadership appears ready to take the F14 matter out of the hands of the Navy, which has been dealing with the cost-overrun problem disclosed nearly two months ago.

Although Grumman Aerospace Corp., Bethpage, L.I., was chosen by the Johnson administration to build the plane, the situation has an embarrassing potential for the Nixon administration because the development contract was signed after President Nixon took office in 1969.

Sources said Packard discussed the F14 problem last week with a high-level Pentagon committee including such senior officials as Dr. John Foster, director of defense research and engineering, and Barry Shillito, assistant secretary for installations and logistics.

Indicating the possible direction of Packard's thinking, one source said, "If you have a cost problem, the only way to handle it is to cut back."

The Navy presently plans to buy 710 of the swing-wing fighters designed to fly from carrier decks starting in 1973.

Late last year, Chafee told newsmen each F14 "Tomcat" would cost about $11.5 million. But in early April Pentagon sources said the price had risen about $1 million higher per plane, which could boost the over-all cost of the program to about $9 billion.

On April 7, Grumman said it expects to produce the first 38 planes, already under contract, for the original price set in December 1968. But the company said building additional aircraft at that price "would not be in the best interest of all parties to the contract."

Grumman cited "the impact of abnormal inflation and a decrease in defense business" as key factors.

Police Rescue Young Girl Hostage in Istanbul

ISTANBUL (AP) — Police broke into the apartment where two young terrorists were holding a 14-year-old girl hostage today, freed the girl in a three-minute gun battle and wounded the two youths, one fatally and the other critically.

The girl was rescued uninjured but hospital officials reported she was being treated for shock. The girl, Sibel Erkan, was at first reported by the hospital to have been wounded.

The two youths, Huseyin Cevahir and Mahir Cayan, were wanted for the kidnap-murder of Israeli Consul General Ephraim Elrom.

Hit in Face Flushed out of a deserted mansion Sunday by police, they invaded the third-floor apartment of a Turkish army major and held his daughter captive after letting her mother and brother go.

building. The shot hit Cayan in the face.

Detectives in bullet-proof vests and helmets charged into the third-floor apartment from fire-ladders where they had been stationed for several hours.

One police officer was slightly injured in the hand as he broke a window.

Once inside, police fired pistols and submachine guns and according to a witness "hundreds of rounds" were exchanged in three or four minutes.

Cayan was shot in the chest from a distance of four feet and fatally injured.

Taken to Hospital The girl was passed out of a kitchen window to police waiting at the top of a ladder. Clad in a dressing gown, she was taken to an army hospital and reported in good condition.

Cevahir succeeded in getting out of the apartment building but was confronted by a hostile crowd, which included many women.

He turned back from the crowd, which had broken through a police cordon, and was seized by troops and police.

One witness said Cevahir was injured in the side and had blood on his face when he ran from the building.

An unconfirmed report by the semiofficial Antolia news agency said Cevahir was carrying a bomb to throw at the crowd, or possibly to kill himself. The agency said a police officer snatched the bomb which exploded harmlessly in a vacant piece of ground.

Crowd Cheered The large crowd cheered as the news of the girl's rescue spread.

The two youths had dropped a bag containing Elrom's passport and identity card Sunday when they moved from the deserted mansion to the apartment.

Carle said plans were in the works for another picture in Mexico.

The plane, a propjet, last was heard from Friday morning when Butler radioed the flight service station at Roanoke's Woomum Airport to advise he planned to land there in 40 minutes.

Rain and low ceiling at the time made a landing approach through the mountainous region hazardous.

Because the Murphy party had filed no flight plan, the Federal Aviation Administration said no reports had been received the plane was missing until Sunday afternoon.

Rainy, overcast weather made a search impossible until the skies cleared Monday.

The large crowd cheered as the news of the girl's rescue spread.

The two youths had dropped a bag containing Elrom's passport and identity card Sunday when they moved from the deserted mansion to the apartment.

Elrom was kidnaped May 17 by the Turkish People's Liberation Army and murdered five days later when the government refused to release all political hostages it was holding.

2 Trades Unions On Strike Today

Members of two of five northern business representative of the eastern Wisconsin construction painters Local 145, said members of his union were meeting expired today are on strike.

Involved are some 1,200 carpenters from a large part of northeastern Wisconsin and some 200 members of the painters union which claims membership from Appleton to Oshkosh.

Laborers and teamsters locals agreed they would not work if they did not have a contract, are not picketing, Smith explained.

Although officials of the bricklayers union refused comment, it was learned that no ballot was taken at a meeting attended by about 75 persons Monday.

Mediation Decision
A spokesman, who asked that he not be identified, said the decision to ask for mediation represented the consensus of those at the meeting. He said the mediator should be here by the end of this week. About 650 bricklayers are affected by the contract dispute.

Voted to Strike
Teamster official Robert Schlieve, whose local represents, both directly and indirectly, some 2,000 truck drivers in the Fox Valley and lakeshore areas, said it was too early to say if a strike might be called after the Thursday meeting.

Wages, fringe benefits and contract language are at issue in the dispute, it was learned.

Strikes by construction trades unions are expected to affect public and private building projects in an area from Fond du Lac and Sheboygan north to Shawano, Marinette and Upper Michigan.

Indians Defy Court Order To Protest at Legend Lake

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

KESHENA — Scuffling broke out between protesters and law enforcement officers Sunday as a Menominee Indian group and its supporters renewed demonstrations at the Legend Lake development site.

Deliberately defying a court order banning demonstrations on property of the land sales office, some of the protesters also openly challenged attempts by their leadership to cool off emotions.

No arrests were made at the scene, though Menominee County Sheriff Wilmer Peters warned the demonstrators that they were in contempt of court as they entered the sales office parking lot, and later sprayed a crowd-control liquid into a struggle that broke out in front of one of the office doors.

Shawano County sheriff's deputies and Shawano police officers responded to a call from Peters for help.

The demonstration resumed on a violent note the protests began last spring by a group called DRUMS (Determination of Rights and Unity for Menominee Shareholders), which opposes sale of former reservation land to non-Indians.

Joined by Sympathizers
Sunday's activities included participants from upper Wisconsin, Milwaukee and Chicago DRUMS chapters as well as such sympathizers as members of the Chicago Indian Village, described by a spokesman as "the most militant Indian group in the nation," and LaCausa — Chicago Federation, a Chicago group.

On April 30, Circuit Judge James A. Martineau of Oconto signed a preliminary injunction prohibiting DRUMS and seven specifically named supporters or members from demonstrating on the Legend Lakes property without permission of the developers, Lakes of the Menominees.

The partnership consists of N.E. Isaacson & Associates, Inc., of Reedsburg, and Menominee Enterprises, Inc., the corporation that manages tribal timber and land holdings in the former reservation, now Menominee County.

The group defied the injunction, according to one spokesman, out of frustration at the court system and the refusal of several courts to uphold the organization's side of the dispute.

Injunction Upheld

Both the Wisconsin Supreme Court and the U.S. District Court in Milwaukee last week refused to overturn Martineau's temporary injunction, which was handed down to prevent demonstrations until a law suit by Lakes of the Menominees against the protesters is settled. The suit stems from previous demonstrations.

Lakes of the Menominees, on the other hand, is currently under court orders to refrain from selling land near a proposed third dam in the artificially enlarged lake chain, until the court rules on a DRUMS-backed challenge of the Department of Natural Resources permit allowing construction of the dam.

Laurel Ortradovic, route 3, Appleton, president of the Menominee County DRUMS chapter, said participants decided after the demonstration Sunday night that they will continue next weekend using the same methods.

Three Scuffles

At least three scuffles broke out, two beginning between individual protesters, both women, and deputies.

The protest began in the community of Keshena on State 47 in the southeast corner of the county. After a rally, with speeches by leaders and music by an Indian rock band, the demonstrators marched the half-mile to the land office and formed a circle in the parking lot, which had been declared off-limits by the court order.

After singing, chanting and shouting for a few minutes, the crowd moved to a dock to meet a paddle-wheel excursion barge operated by the developers to carry prospective land buyers around the lakes.

Deputies, joined by two non-uniformed men with heavy sticks apparently made from spade handles, guarded the dock while about 16 white passengers, half of them children, got out of the craft and went to the sales office.

A group of protesters got into the boat and demanded a ride, then abruptly turned their attention to the sales office, a modern glass-walled building built on pilings above the ground and surrounded by wide wooden decks.

"Nobody gets inside that building," shouted James Renne, sales manager for the development, to Peters as the two climbed the steps to the porch-like deck ahead of the demonstrators.

Taken From Deck

A short time later, Peters escorted Lloyd Powless, Milwaukee DRUMS president, from the deck. "Tkaing an American Indian off his land," Powless declared, hands upraised, as he was pushed from the deck.

The two scuffles broke out soon after near two of the stairways leading up from the ground. One woman showed a deputy a red mark on her wrist after they had struggled. Cries of "woman beater" came from the crowd.

Deputies lined up with their backs against the glass doors as customers and sales persons watched from inside and demonstrators berated the officers, several of whom are Menominees.

The leaders attempted several times to lead the crowd off the porch and all but two or three dozen had returned to ground level and more appeared to be following when someone forced open one of the doors.

In the melee that followed, Peters reached above the crowd and squirted a liquid from a small black canister. The struggle melted as participants on both sides held their faces and eyes.

Strategy Meeting

Ortradovic, Powless and John Gauthier, a Menominee student at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, attempted several times to persuade the group to leave and hold a "strategy meeting" on a portion of the lawn nearby.

"We don't need no strategy," replied one of the demonstrators. "You're too conservative, you don't want to go forward," a woman in black slacks and blouse told a woman trying to assist the other leaders. "We fought too hard to get this far," another shouted.

Gradually the group faded back and went to the lawn. A group of younger demonstrators ran the American flag on a pole outside the sales office to half-mast, to cheers from the crowd. Opponents of the demonstrators, an elderly couple, argued with the young people about the treatment of the flag.

Ortradovic told the crowd, "I declare Menominee County in a state of emergency." He added that as president of the county group, he "won't be responsible for the actions of any of my people in this state of emergency."

Beats Drum

He called for a "strategy meeting" that evening, prompting arguments from others who said they should meet immediately. After several minutes of indecision, Powless began beating one of the drums that had been used during the march, and others led a snake dance.

Study Shows Tornadoes Occur Most Frequently on Flat Land

MADISON — The paths of tornado frequency. Using topographic maps and direct observations from a plane, the researchers found the shunted regions had much greater variability in height than the tornado alleys.

Two main alleys exist in Wisconsin, Lettau says. The first, in west central Wisconsin, cuts through Pierce, Dunn, Chippewa, Taylor, and Clark counties. This seems to be an extension of a high tornado region of central Iowa.

A secondary southern alley passes through LaFayette, Green, Rock, and Jefferson counties. Tornadoes may act this way, Lettau thinks, because rough terrain offers frictional resistance to high-speed winds.

Indian Village halted the dance, however. "You can't continue this. You'll just keep on going around in circles all your lives." He told them to be at the meeting at 7 p.m.

Powless led the group from the property by holding up a medicine bag made from the whole hide of a weasel and pronouncing a curse on the land office and its occupants. He asked the spirits to make the occupants' warriors fall in battle, their women barren and their children turn their backs on their elders.

The crowd laughed and cheered and followed Powless as he held the furry medicine bag aloft and led them off the property to the beating of a drum.

Licensing of Polluters Backed

MADISON, Wis., (AP) — The Senate Natural Resources Committee heard favorable testimony recently on a bill requiring all persons or firms discharging wastes into state waters to be licensed by the state.

Polluters would be required to pay cleanup charges in proportion to the economic damage their discharges do to the environment. The committee took no action on the bill.

Large Concerned by Rising Price of Liability Coverage

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The head of the Wisconsin State Senate committee that handles insurance legislation has asked the senate to authorize a broad-scale investigation by the committee of what he calls the "steep rise" in premiums charged for general public liability insurance and professional liability insurance.

Sen. Gerald Lorge of Bear Creek, chairman of the senate committee on commerce, labor, taxation, insurance and banking, said he intends to give special emphasis to the rapidly rising charges for malpractice insurance for professional practitioners. He said physicians and surgeons and lawyers are especially alarmed about the rapid acceleration of their insurance costs in recent years.

The Lorge resolution now before the senate asserts that "it appears likely that insurance companies in the public and professional liability field may well be over-charging."

If the committee discovers "questionable rating practices," it added, they should be brought to the attention of the State Department of Insurance for correction.

Lorge said that the state commissioner of insurance has already been asked to provide the committee he heads with information on the rate setting procedure in the casualty insurance field.

He said he would await the conclusion of his committee's formal inquiry, but is seriously inclined to sponsor legislation under his own name that would set a legal limit on amounts that could be recovered in malpractice actions and establish a statute of limitations as well. He suggested a four-year period for the latter.

There is now no limit to the amount of damages that can be asked or awarded in a malpractice action under Wisconsin law, although the state sets a $25,000 limit on indemnity for wrongful death in general and the legislature recently set a $25,000 maximum limit on claims in tort actions against municipalities. Earlier municipalities were immune from such lawsuits.

Lorge said he has learned that some professional practitioners have retired in protest against the rocketing costs of liability insurance.

Proxmire Would be Taxpayers' Candidate

Sen. William Proxmire Friday elected to the Senate. Proxmire outlined some of the factors he said the economy should be a central concern of his party's presidential primary candidate. Inflation can be brought under control, he said, "only if we hold down federal spending." At present, said Proxmire, "there is no candidate for the taxpayer."

The senior Wisconsin senator, whose views on defense spending are his strong card in national politics, listed money and the numerous other possible contenders as two factors.

He also said he doesn't feel it will be necessary to make up his mind before December or January, since it is that long before it is necessary to enter any of the state primaries.

An economist before being great deal of national recognition.

His home state and its pivotal role in the presidential primary are Proxmire's doorway to the national contest. He admitted that while other candidates are jealously vying for chances to speak before gatherings of Wisconsin Democrats, he doesn't feel his presence or absence at such functions "would help me or hurt me."

But other states also have significant primaries, and the first traditionally has been New Hampshire. Asked if he would run in that state's primary, he already have "established a reputation."

Chilton Planning
Summer School

CHILTON — The summer school session will begin June 22, and continue for six weeks, ending July 30, according to Robert Gartfield, elementary principal.

All the classes will be conducted in the public school building at 509 School Court. Transportation will be provided for rural students.

This year's program will be divided into two projects, one for Title I children, and one for other for children needing remedial work only. Both projects will concentrate on reading and mathematics.

The title I project will use the services of five teachers, five teacher aides, one speech correctionist, one guidance counselor, the County Nurse and the Department of Welfare Staff. For motivational and enrichment purposes Title I children will participate in interesting field trips around this area.

Enrollment is limited to 55 children. Milk and a snack will be provided for these children.

Personal Style
His campaign style is a personal type, and New Hampshire is small enough in both area and population to accommodate that kind of tactic, he said.

He also revealed his campaign, if he entered the Granite State, would be similar to that of Sen. Eugene McCarthy, whose victory three years ago shot a relatively unknown candidate into serious contention for the nomination.

"I would have to go in on a shoestring," said Proxmire, adding that this would mean relying heavily on volunteers.

McCarthy depended on students, and his "Children's Army" of volunteers was given much credit for drumming up the support that won him the primary.

Proxmire said states like New York, California "and even Wisconsin" require heavier outlays of money, for television and newspaper advertising and other costs.

Commenting on the likelihood that President Nixon will be a candidate for re-election, Proxmire said he has no doubt. But he added that the President is "very vulnerable" and will remain so unless he pulls remaining U.S. troops out of Vietnam "soon and decisively" and makes visible progress in cutting inflation and unemployment.

The senator conceded that he disagrees with some of his party's potential White House candidates, in that he will openly admit that a good showing by President Nixon in the two areas of the war and the economy would rob Democrats of their main campaign issues.

He also speculated that if Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington state should win the Democratic nomination, it could spin off a third-party campaign. Candidates such as Eugene McCarthy are possibly New York Mayor John Lindsay, he said, could split off the party's anti-military forces, who would be repelled by Jackson's strong position in support of the defense establishment. "We might have a very divided party," said Proxmire.

Broader Vocational Program Is Urged

More Variety at Stockbridge School

STOCKBRIDGE — A plan to broaden the vocational program in the high school was discussed by Richard Weinberger, industrial arts instructor, with the board of education Thursday night.

Weinberger suggested that the program include upholstery, power mechanics, a foundry area class, printing and graphic arts, small engines and a more intensive welding program.

He discussed the problems he had experienced this year, saying he had not been pleased with the program. He pointed to the cost of woodworking projects, which had kept the number of other projects down, and to the poor attitude of the older boys towards mechanical drawing. He also noted the difficulty he had had in keeping the students motivated and interested.

More Choices
He suggested mini classes of nine instead of 13 weeks duration.

Other Facilities
In his discussion, Weinberger initiated this year, he housed the instructors have been sharing facilities, and the two programs are not compatible in the same area, he said.

Schools in Favor
The representative said that Brillion, New Holstein, Hilbert, Sheboygan Falls, Elkhart Lake, Oostburg and Cedar Grove favored the program, and he expected most of the schools to go along with it. No action will be taken until the next meeting, though the board indicated favor for the plan.

Speech therapy contract with CESA 10 for the 1971-72 term was signed at $183 a month, $5 a month increase over this year. The speech therapist is at the school one day a week. A change in the vocational technical coordinator's contract was reported. He will be at the school one day every two weeks, instead of every week.

Contracts for the summer Title I corrective reading program were signed.

Meyers brought the board up-to-date regarding election of school board members which, after the 1972 election will be held in the spring.

The part-time janitor will not work during the summer, it was reported, and the janitor will paint a room, a job previously considered to be let out on contract.

Infant Drowns in Lake

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — William Schwaab 22-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schwaab of rural Butte des Morts drowned Sunday when he fell into Lake Butte des Morts near his Winnebago County home.

His death was one of at least four in Wisconsin waters during the long holiday weekend. A St. Paul, Minn. teen-ager was also believed drowned in the St. Croix River along the Wisconsin-Minnesota border.

Authorities said Miss Amy Hause, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hause of St. Paul, fell from a pier near the Interstate Park in Polk County Friday night and was swept downstream. Dragging continued through the weekend.

Physicians Protest Medical System At Commencement

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A "complex and delicately balanced" system now in effect, 104 students who graduated from the Medical College of Wisconsin during the weekend called for sharp changes in attitudes and practices of the American health system.

The statement accused physicians and the American Medical Association of having "subverted the principles of equality, justice and democracy."

It said patients face the "inhumane double jeopardy of simultaneous physical and financial hardship because of the fee for service system."

The statement proposed changes which included:

—Equal access to primary health care for all people through establishment of comprehensive community health centers.

Review Board
—A consumer and health worker review board to "assure cost and quality control."

—Reduction of drug prices and elimination of profits.

—An end to the traditional structure of health care occupations with "women blacks and browns at the bottom and white middle class males at the top."

—Free training for all health occupations available to members of all segments of society.

The statement called the Indochina war "criminal." It urged medical schools to refuse to give names of graduating seniors to draft boards until the war ends and a national health corps is established as an alternative to military service for health workers.

Not at Ceremony
The school, formerly the Marquette School of Medicine, refused to allow students to read the statement at commencement ceremonies. A spokesman said the school felt "commencement should not be a forum for presentation of personal views."

The spokesman said school officials were not opposed to some of the points raised, but felt others were political in tone and thus beyond their control.

The commencement speaker, Nobel Prize winning geneticist George Beadle, also urged a social change but urged a more "gradual social evolution" which would not upset the

Koreans in 3rd Air-Sea Fight in Month

SEOUL (AP) — In the third sea battle in four weeks, South Korean forces claimed to have sunk a North Korean boat with all hands Tuesday. But a South Korean plane with seven men aboard was believed lost.

The Defense Ministry said South Korean jet fighters sank the intruding boat near Sokhuk-san Do, an island off the southwest coast, after a three-hour chase. The 70-ton boat had a crew of 15 to 17 men, and all were believed drowned.

A South Korean air force C46 with seven men aboard was missing and believed shot down during the chase. A second plane, a supersonic F5 Freedom Fighter, also was hit by fire from the North Korean boat but made it back to its base, a spokesman said.

In the two other sea encounters during May, a North Korean boat escaped on the night of May 4 after a brief sea battle, and another was sunk May 14 off the east coast just below the armistice line.

Allowance Hike Is Requested for Royal Family

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II has asked Parliament for the first increase in the allowance for herself and other members of the royal family since she became sovereign 19 years ago.

"Her majesty regrets that developments in the intervening years have made that provision inadequate for the maintenance of that standard of service to her people to which she believes they wish her and her family to adhere," her message said.

Court sources said the queen now receives $1.02 million annually and needs about $1.92 million. She offered to give up $144,000 that Parliament allots her annually for purely personal expenses.

Parliament has provided British sovereigns with an allowance since King George III agreed after the American revolution to turn over to Parliament all revenue from the crown estates. That revenue amounted to $8.4 million this year.

One Aluminum Firm Struck

Steelworkers Sign With Four Major Metal Producers

NEW YORK (AP) — The United Steelworkers union and four major aluminum companies have reached agreement on new three-year contracts giving some 32,400 workers an average pay boost of about 30 per cent over the period.

A spokesman for a fifth producer, Olin Aluminum Co. in Hannibal, Ohio, said 900 USW members struck the company's plant at 4 p.m. Monday after talks broke down over local issues. A union spokesman said 1,500 USW members were on strike.

Aluminum Co. of America, the nation's No. 1 producer, said it would raise prices on nearly all fabricated products by 6 per cent starting in September. Alcoa said it would not increase the price of primary ingot.

The settlements announced here Monday were similar to the basic wage increases the steelworkers won from the major can companies in March after a 28-day strike. President Nixon criticized that agreement as inflationary.

A White House spokesman declined Monday to comment "at this time" on the settlements with Alcoa Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp., Reynolds Metals Co. and Ormet Aluminum.

Abel Statement
I. W. Abel, the steelworkers' president, had rejected a White House "inflation alert," claiming his members were the victims of inflation, not the cause.

Alcoa and Reynolds also reached agreement with the Aluminum Workers International Union, which represents about 16,000 workers at the two companies. Terms were described as similar to the steelworkers' pact.

The steelworkers called their contract "unprecedented" and "a substantial victory" with major breakthroughs in pension and vacation benefits as well as increased hourly wages.

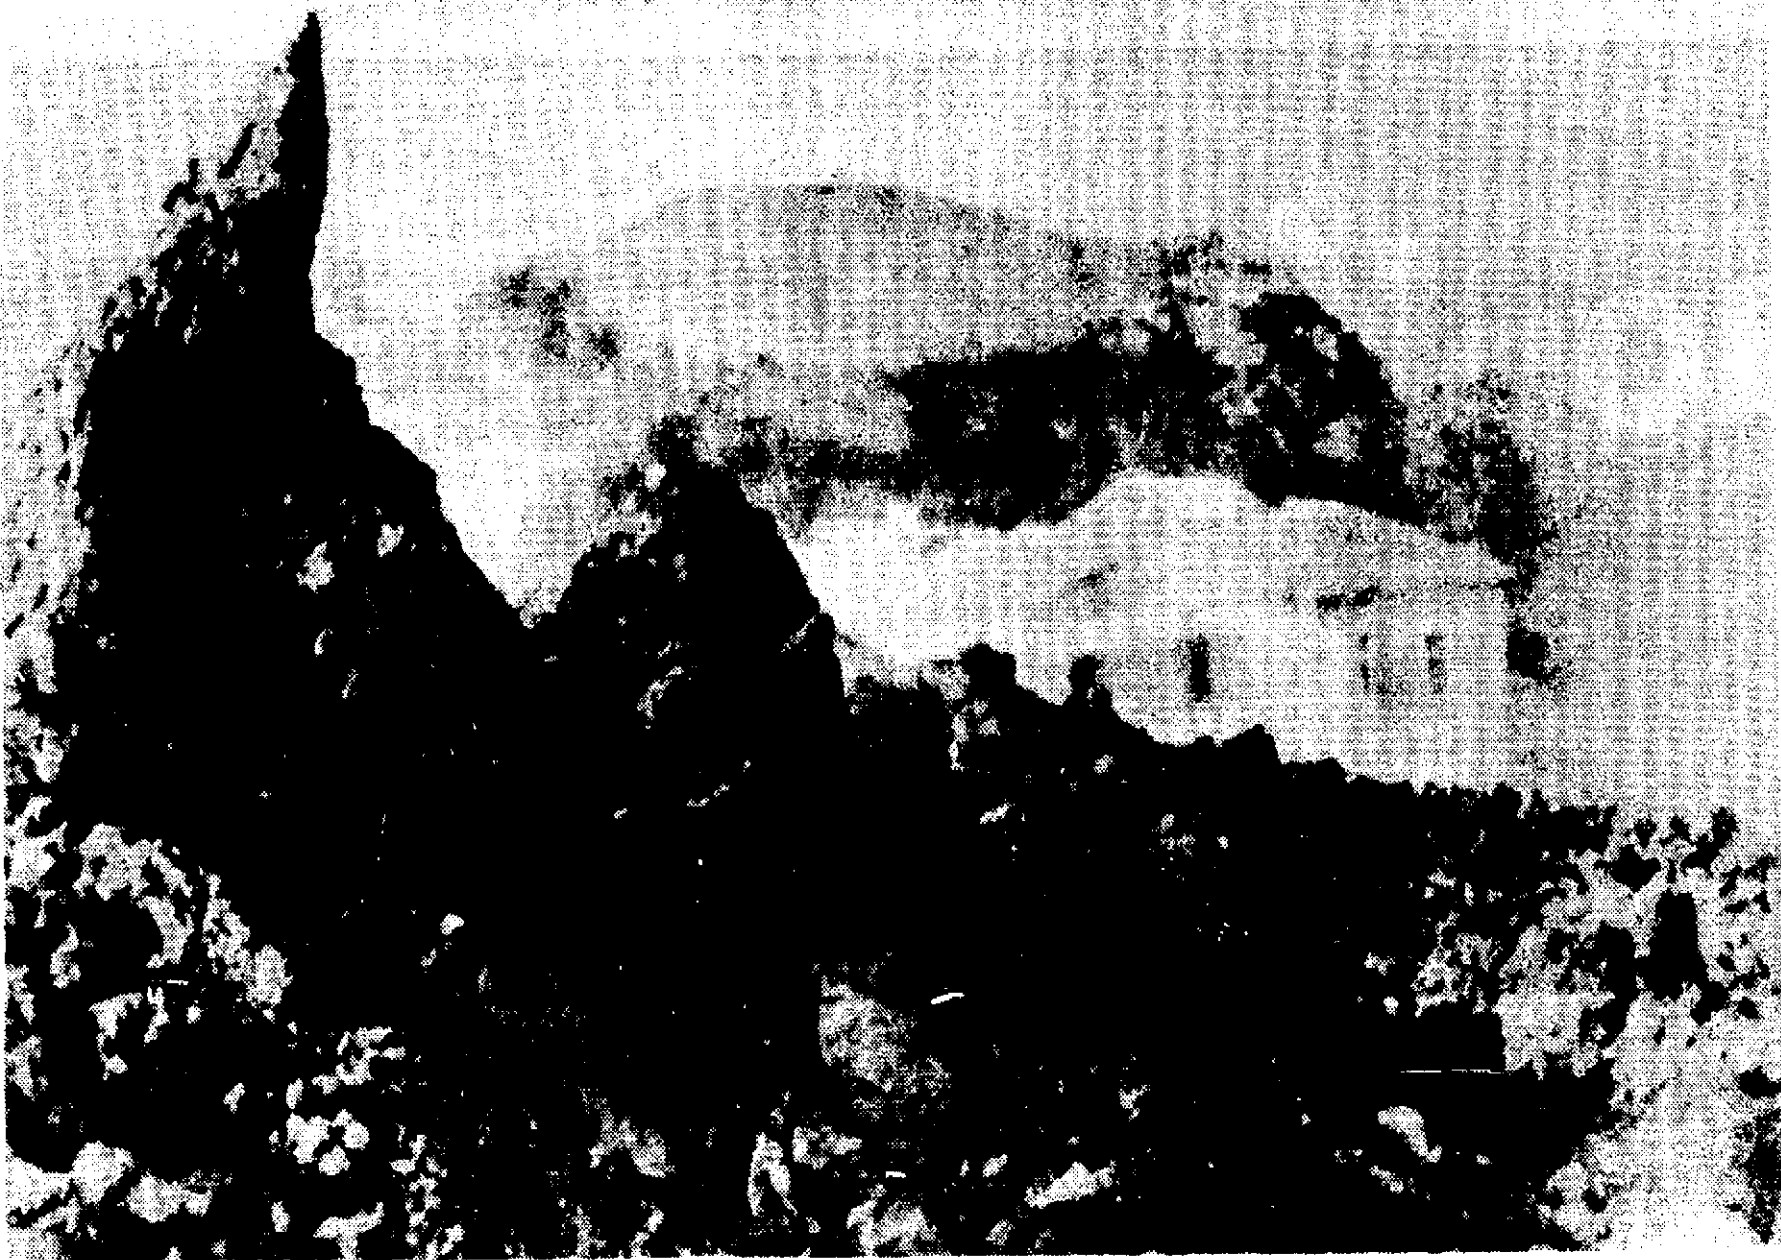

The contracts cover 11,000 employees at Alcoa, 10,500 at Kaiser, 8,700 at Reynolds and 2,200 at Ormet. The union said Rank and file ratification of the USW contract is not required.

Living Costs
Terms of the pacts call for average wage increases of 54 1/2 cents an hour the first year and 15 1/2 cents plus a minimum 12 1/2-cent cost-of-living boost in each of the next two years.

The minimum hourly increase will be $1 an hour over three years, and it ranges up to $1.34 or higher if the cost of living rises more than expected. The union said the average hourly wage under contracts which expired at 4 p.m. Monday was $3.67.

The monthly pension benefit factor will go up 38 per cent from $6.50 to $9—meaning that a worker will be paid $9 a month in pension for each year of service. For 30 years of service it would be $270 a month.

Other improvements in the new contracts are a 25-cent-per-hour differential for weekend work and abnormal schedules, extra pay if vacations have to be taken in the winter, and increased life insurance, sickness and accident pay survivors' benefits, medical benefits, holidays and supplemental unemployment benefits.

Antiwar Marchers in Memorial Day Parades

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

war protesters marched alongside regular units in the city's Memorial Day parade. But only a scattered heckling mated a similar event in Madison.

The Milwaukee war protesters, led by a group of Vietnam veterans, marched on the sidewalk while traditional parade units strutted down the middle of Wisconsin Avenue.

About 200 protesters joined the march, after they had been denied a permit to take part in the regular parade, changing profane slogans and at times heckling policemen.

Arnold R. Kramer, a deputy police inspector, warned them to cease the profanity and another time threatened to declare an unlawful assembly when the procession halted momentarily.

Disorderly Conduct
When profanity resumed as the protesters passed the reviewing stand, police moved

A spokesman for the protesters James A. Boone, 24, said of the City Council, which last week endorsed a resolution calling for a parade dedicated to mourning and repentance.

War. Absent from the reviewing stand were the mayor and other civic dignitaries. Only John Cappon, a World War I veteran, was being spit upon by the from Madison, and Mrs. Martin, whose son, David, died in Vietnam, watched from the protesters marched peacefully around the state Capitol for about half an hour in a light rain.

The march was led by the Madison Veterans for Peace Council, sponsor of the city's Memorial Day parade for the past 36 years, pulled out earlier Veterans Council parade. M. B. Abdo, said the group dropped plans to participate because of fears violence would result if antiwar groups marched with traditional veterans' organizations.

The chairman of the Madison Veterans for Peace, Jon Reddin, said his group felt Memorial Day should be a day of "dedication to peace, more than just mourning." He referred to the "other veterans' day."

"It's very unfortunate that they're living in the past," Reddin said. "World War II veterans and some of the older veterans are unable to make the transition between their war, which I think was justified, and this war (Vietnam), which I think isn't."

Blind Graduate Not Handicapped

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Leslie Hutchings, who will graduate with a Phi Beta Kappa key from the University of Utah on Saturday, wrote her senior honors thesis on a classic French love story involving a blind girl.

The subject appealed to the 21-year-old green-eyed blonde because she, too, is blind.

Leslie, who gradually lost her sight in elementary school because of deterioration of the retina, has devoted more than 40 hours a week to her French honors studies during the past four years.

Doing her homework from tapes, records and braille, she has acquired mostly As.

Academic excellence is nothing new for the coed from Bountiful, Utah. She graduated with straight As from high school, ranking seventh in a class of 400.

Teach French
Leslie hopes to teach high school French and has applied for a job in several of Utah's smaller school districts.

During her student teaching stint at three Salt Lake schools, Leslie had her students punch out holes in their examination papers so she could grade the tests by feeling the indentations.

"They thought that was great," she said. "Wow, a new way to take tests."

Leslie says she has never wanted to be treated as a special case. She recalls that she was furious when at the age of 11, she was taken out of public school and enrolled in the Utah School for the Blind in Ogden, Utah.

Not all of Leslie's life, however, has been devoted to studies. In her spare time, she trains her quarterhorse, raises 30 chickens on her own egg farm and teaches a Sunday school class of 18 11-year-olds.

Man Charged In Disrobings Hospitalized

Milwaukeean Had Been Convicted in Incident With Coeds

MANITOWOC, Wis. (AP) — A 49-year-old man charged with picking up three 19-year-old coeds and forcing them to disrobe at knifepoint will spend some time at the Central State Hospital.

John Watson of Milwaukee was committed to the Waupun institution for an indefinite period by Manitowoc County Judge Harold Mueller.

Watson was found guilty April 8 on one count of attempted rape and two counts of assault with a deadly weapon. He was also sentenced to two concurrent five-year prison terms by Mueller on the weapons charges.

Psychiatrists told the judge Watson was in need of "further specialized treatment" after the Milwaukee man underwent a 60-day mental and physical examination.

He was accused of picking up the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee coeds in Milwaukee March 19, driving them to the Two River area and forcing them to undress. The girls said they were able to wrestle the weapon from him, and run to a nearby farmhouse for help.

Zoo Director Gets Surprise From Ostrich

HONOLULU (AP) — Jorgy the ostrich cut a fine figure as a strutting male bird in the Honolulu zoo until it laid an egg.

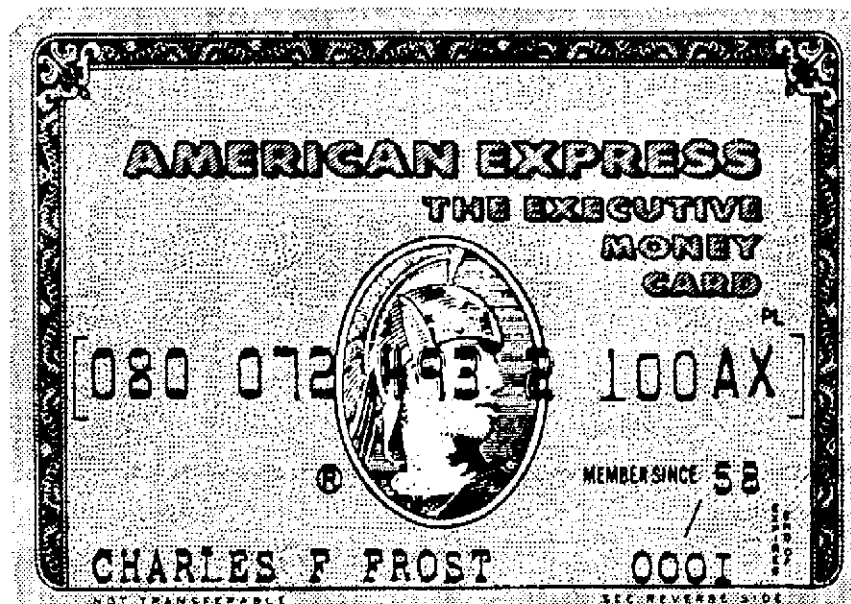

"We couldn't have been more surprised," zoo director Jack Throp said.

Throp said Jorgy started his life at the zoo as the female of a pair, but six years ago, at the age of three, turned into what Throp described as "a quasi-male."

"It's a thing which happens to some birds," he said. "It's a matter of hormones. This bird definitely took on male characteristics, sprouted male plumage, became aggressive, and lost the ability to reproduce."

But, Throp added, "Suddenly one bright and sunny day, there was an egg."

Nixon, Wallace Forces Reported Conferring

If Latter Stays Out of Race President Would Reap Reward From Southern Strategy

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A tight 1972 presidential race, a Wallace repeat of 1968, when he captured 45 electoral votes, could be fatal to Mr. Nixon. Operating in an atmosphere of high secrecy, a tenuous line of communication has now been opened between agents of President Nixon and Gov. George Wallace that he and the President's aides have the same goal — to defeat a liberal Democrat in lead to a sub rosa understanding which would take Wallace out of the 1972 presidential election.

Whether any such deal could be consummated is, to say the least, highly conjectural and filled with risks for the President. But the probable gain to Mr. Nixon of running for re-election free from the Wallace threat in the Deep South makes it well worth trying.

Moreover, removal of Wallace from a 1972 presidential candidacy would be the last touch of icing on the President's Southern strategy, which has always aimed at uniting the 1968 Nixon and Wallace vote to give the President a national majority. The new line of communication between Montgomery and Washington runs from some of Wallace's most confidential political aides into the Justice Department offices of Atty. Gen. John Mitchell (soon to become Mr. Nixon's campaign manager) and his deputy, Richard Kleindienst. Wallace has several times sent word to Washington, on one occasion through tough, able Postmaster General Winton Blount (a probable Republican senatorial candidate against Democratic Sen. John Sparkman next year), that he and the Nixon administration have a common interest — to keep a liberal Democrat out of the White House.

Wallace Boast
Wallace has always claimed that he cost Hubert Humphrey more hard-hat conservative Democratic votes in such marginal 1968 Nixon states as New Jersey and Missouri than he took from Mr. Nixon in the South. By that logic, a Wallace entry in 1972 would help, not hurt, Mr. Nixon.

But neither the President nor most other politicians agree with that Wallace assessment. To the contrary, given Mr. Nixon's questionable popularity outside the South and the consequent prospect of an extremely tight 1972 presidential race, a Wallace repeat of 1968, when he captured 45 electoral votes, could be fatal to Mr. Nixon. Nevertheless, the word from President Nixon and Gov. George Wallace that he and the President's aides have the same goal — to defeat a liberal Democrat in lead to a sub rosa understanding which would take Wallace out of the 1972 presidential election.

Possible elements of a sub rosa Nixon-Wallace deal are far from clear, but there are some clues. For example, statehouse politicians here have been quietly informed that Mr. Nixon will request at least $36 million next year for the waterway project he dedicated in Mobile on Tuesday. That project could make Mobile the most important port on the Gulf Coast. Any number of ways to pump federal funds into Alabama would be available to Washington.

Given Warnings
Moreover, Wallace is hearing some arguments from his own inner circle against running. As one aide told us: "All we are asking George to give up is six months of those big, frenzied crowds." Wallace is also hearing warnings that he might not run nearly so well as he did in 1968 — warnings that, although he privately ridicules them, may have an impact.

That Mr. Nixon's assiduous wooing of the South has been highly successful was clearly evident in the President's very friendly reception last Tuesday during his visits to Mobile and Birmingham. Even with the Supreme Court's busing decision on an ominous backdrop, Mr. Nixon's motorcade through Alabama's two largest cities and the private remarks of Southern politicians of both parties left no doubt that Mr. Nixon's magnolia courtship is now paying off.

If fact, some Southern politicians we talked to think that as of today the President could actually give Wallace a close run even in his own state of Alabama with a moderate liberal like Maine's Sen. Edmund Muskie sharing a three-way split.

For Mr. Nixon, overt signs of an arrangement with Wallace could boomerang in the North and thus the Wallace problem must be handled with consummate delicacy. As for Wallace, despite grave political problems at home, he is looking very much like a 1972 presidential candidate, the subject for a subsequent report.

There Is No Sanctuary Behind a Clean Desk

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — A clean desk is the sign of a frightened mind.

I've said this before, and I now say it again.

I was nearly scared out of my wits a month ago when, bowing to popular office demand, I let the vast hump of debris atop my desk be cleaned off.

That represented a tremendous sacrifice to me. To those around me that 4-foot-deep tower of rubble was only an eyesore and a needless mess. To me it was a mound of marvels, the many-layered story of my life. It represented conservation, sanctuary, security.

You'd think that with everybody else in America hellbent trying to throw everything away, anyone who tried to save something would be regarded as a hero. Not if he tries to save it on his desk!

Pressure Mounted
The pressure mounted day by day. First came a parade of memos from paper clip Hitler's sternly ordering that my desk pile be removed. I put the memos on top of the pile. Then the paper clip Hitler came in person and shouted in my ears until my head rang.

Then the fire department came and said spontaneous combustion was an imminent possibility, and they'd have to hose off the desk. Then a fellow in a false mustache who said he represented the federal government arrived and threatened to have the desk declared a national disaster area and bulldozed to the floor.

"Couldn't we just have it roped off and declared a national shrine?" I asked. No go.

Well, finally after telegrams for help to the American Civil Liberties Union and the U.S. Supreme Court brought no response, I caved in.

"Clean It Off!"

"Alright, clean it off," I whispered brokenly. "We might as well all go to hell with clean desks together."

The volunteer for this task was a fellow worker, Miss Dee.

Wedevever, a lovely and talented young writer from North Carolina, but so determined that she probably could have cleaned the Augean stables in three days less time than it took Hercules.

Her fast flying fingers filled wastebasket after wastebasket with cascades of old letters and treasured relics of my yesterdays. In five hours she removed every trace of the magical clutter it had taken me five hard years to accumulate.

"Isn't it beautiful!" she exclaimed.

There the desktop gleamed, bare as a baby's behind after a bubble bath. But beautiful? No, indeed.

Feeling of Fright
I never have had such a feeling of utter fright. I stretched out my arms across that empty desk and knew a terrible ache of loneliness.

I missed my paper mountain of memories. It had been merely trash to others, but I knew better. It had been part of me, and now it was gone forever.

I felt vulnerable and alone. I felt as exposed as a woman with a shaved head or an alligator crawling across Death Valley.

There was no place to hide. The telephone, ordinarily muffled by half a ton of junk, now stood clearly in view. I would have to start answering it again — the final indignity.

Well, in life there are compensations for every loss, and gradually I'm losing my fear and getting my old courage back.

In less than a month I've got my desk covered with a six-inch layer of fresh debris—wonderful, wonderful stuff.

I figure that if I work hard and fast enough I'll have a 10-foot pile of grab-bag charms built up before the bugle blows and the office paper clip Hitler start marching my way again.

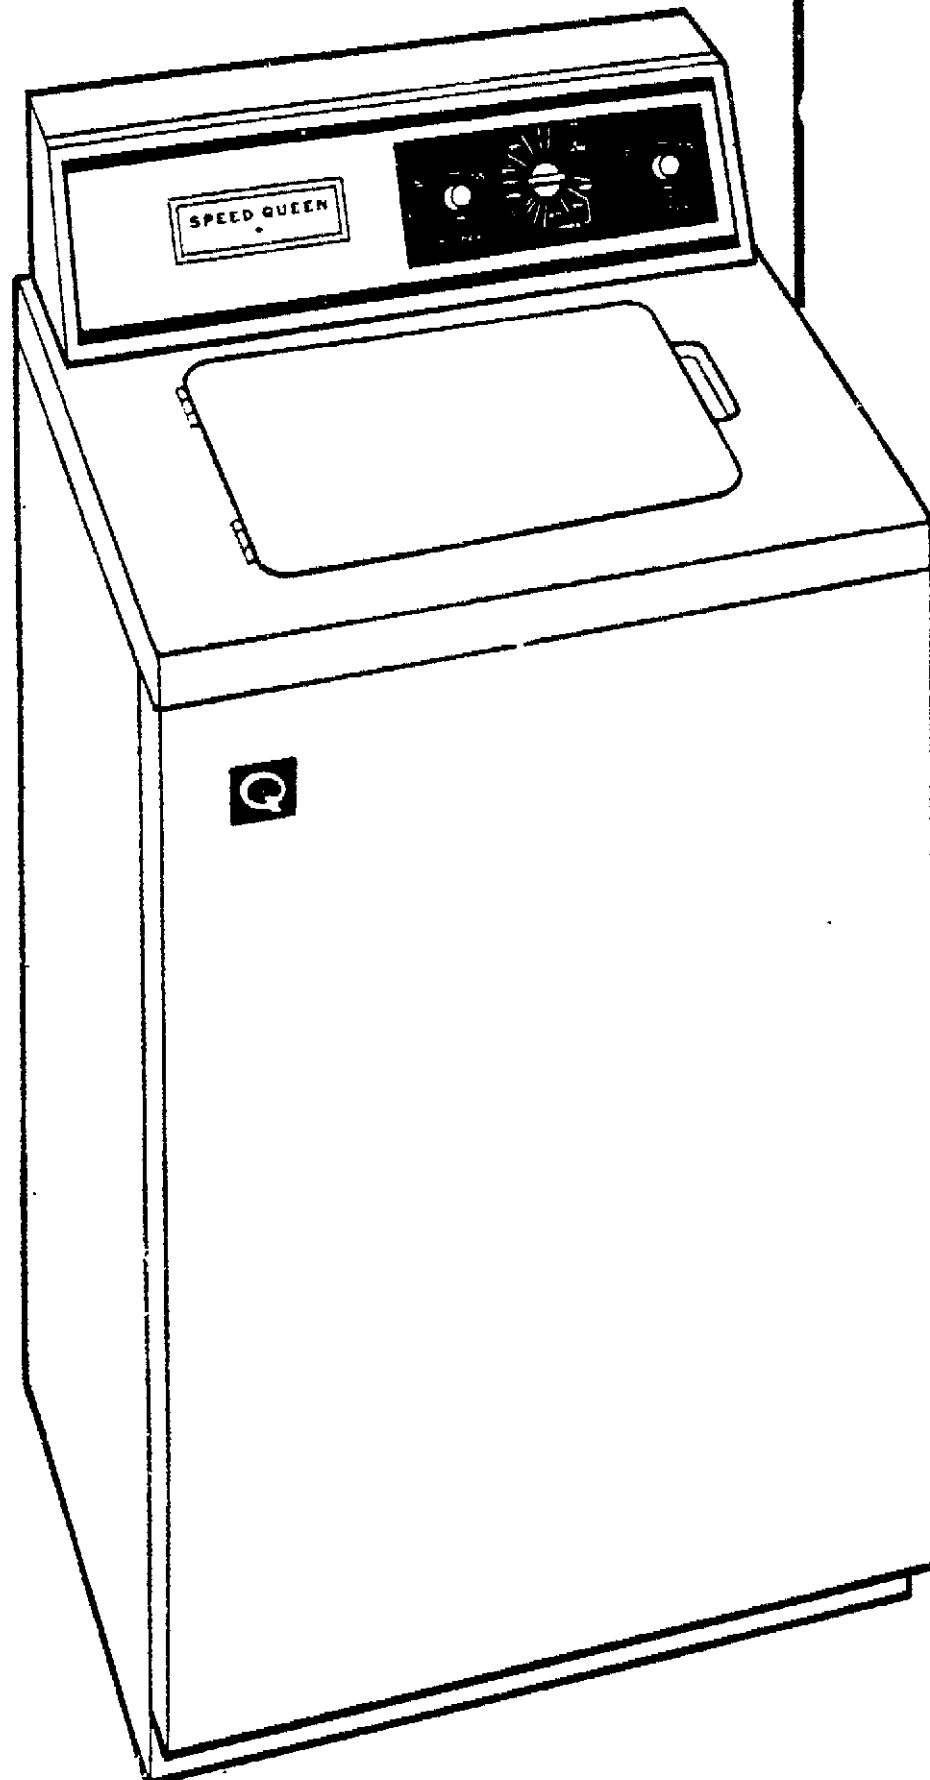

But this time they'll simply have to declare my desk a national monument—if not a shrine.

Surely there couldn't be a law on earth that would force a man to clean off his desk twice in one lifetime, could there?

Iceland is Nearly Crime-Free Nation

By FRED COLEMAN Associated Press Writer REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Tourist guides here tell of the American who wanted to see the only convicted murderer in Iceland, but was informed the man was away from prison, watching a movie in the next town. "Aren't you afraid he won't come back?" the American asked the warden. "Oh no," came the reply. "He knows we lock the gates at midnight." Like most of the folklore here, the story has some truth to it. By official count there have been only three murders in this island in 30 years. It is a nation virtually without crime. The penal system, which stresses rehabilitation rather than punishment, is one reason why. Rare Murder Armann Kristinnsson, a criminal court judge, convicted one of the rare murderers in recent Icelandic history. The judge visited the man in prison, and, after his release, invited the convict into his home as a house-guest. The two men are still friends. There is no capital punishment. The maximum prison sentence is life, but in practice most murderers are sentenced to 16 years and get off earlier for good behavior. Officials say the relatively light sentences appear to have no effect on the crime rate, which has been steady since before World War II. People often leave their homes unlocked, or their keys in cars parked downtown. Iceland's approach begins with the young. The relatively few teen-agers arrested for brawling, drunkenness or petty theft are usually given deferred indictments in their first couple brushes with the law. Such cases never come to court, but the offending youngsters are kept under surveillance. Later Reform The Justice Ministry estimates 80-90 per cent of the young people given such suspended indictments become law-abiding members of the community and never cause trouble again. There are practically no instances here of robbery with violence, only occasional sexual offenses, officials say. Baldur Moller, undersecretary of the Justice Ministry, finds a number of reasons for the low level of crime in this country of 200,000. For one "It is difficult to have flourishing crime because almost everyone knows everybody else." For another, much the same reason it is almost impossible to assemble a jury without picking all friends and enemies of the accused. Judges decide cases without juries.

Your Money's Worth Money for Student Loans Needs Support

BY SYLVIA PORTER If you will need a loan to help finance your way through college or a vocational, business, technical, nursing or other school this fall, I have both great good news and an urgent warning for you. First the good news: under the proposed Higher Education Act of 1971, the federal-state guaranteed student loan program—the key program to aid middle-grade kids of middle-income families—will be significantly liberalized. You, the student, will be able to borrow more money under much easier terms. At the same time, the financial lending institutions—banks, credit unions, savings and loan associations—mostly—will be provided with a major new and continuing source of funds to lend to you. Now the urgent warning: June 30 is the expiration date for the current guaranteed student loan program. An act extending and amending it and other vital higher education laws is now being placed before the House Special Subcommittee on Education, headed by Congresswoman Edith Green, Democrat of Oregon. Alert Your Congressman This legislation, primarily the work of Edith Green, must be passed. Alert your representatives to the bill's existence and the need to get it through. Ask influential bankers, educators, others who might be involved to put on the pressure too. Assuming the act, with its important amendments, does become law this summer: —The maximum amount you, a student, will be able to borrow each academic year will be raised from $1,500 to $2,500 from a total altogether of $7,500 to $10,000. —Regardless of your family's financial status, you, a student in good academic standing at an approved institution, will be eligible for the loans. And, if charges, they have informed repeat, the eligible institutions, the public service commission, include vocational and business applications for tariff revisions as well as colleges. —The maximum interest charged to you will be 7 per cent a year, with lenders getting a "bonus" interest of up to 3 per cent more from the commissioner of education if 7 June 18 also in Madison per cent is perceptibly below the market level for interest which serves sections of Waunakee. If the finance officer of your school issues a statement also desiring to discontinue two, that you must have this loan to four and multi-party service.

pursue your education, the federal government will pay the entire 7 per cent interest while you're in school; otherwise, you will pay the 7 per cent. In either case you will assume the 7 per cent interest charge after graduation.

Irritations Removed This simple "needs test" will replace the present law's confusing, irritating limits on your family's adjusted gross income to permit the government's assumption of the interest.

—A student Loan Marketing Association ("Sallie Mae") will be created as a new federal government corporation to eliminate the liquidity squeeze which has so endangered these student loans during tight money periods. Sallie Mae will sell its own government-guaranteed securities and raise money in the open market. It will then use these funds to buy student loans from private lenders, and by so doing will give the lenders new money for new loans.

Other details are generally the same. You may get a loan at any one of about 20,000 financial outlets. You need not begin repayment until nine to 12 months after graduation and you may extend repayment to a maximum of 15 years after the date of your first loan. There is no penalty for repayment. If you enter military service or VISTA or the Peace Corps, you get a special moratorium on payments.

Under this program, $3.1 billion has been borrowed via 3,500,000 loans. The borrowers have primarily been 18 to 23 years old, from families with incomes below $9,000 — and most important, the program has been a prime source of aid in vocational schools.

The new law will be a magnificent contribution to education at a time of towering need. Make sure the bill passes — and then take full advantage of it.
